Clemson vs. Wake Forest

This is Clemson Football

Nick Eason 6-7

Senior Spotlight

If you were to look up the definition of "student-athlete," you might just find Nick Eason's name there. The graduate student from Lyons, GA is the emotional leader of the rejuvenated Tiger defense, but he also exhibits his leadership qualities by giving of himself to the community.

Bryant McNeal 10-11

Senior Spotlight

No, #91 Bryant McNeal isn't a sixth-year senior on the Tiger defensive line, even though it seems that way. McNeal, who looks, plays, and wears the same number as former Tiger and current NFL defensive lineman Lorenzo Bromell, has made a name for himself the last two seasons at Clemson.

Michael Dean Perry 15

ACC 50-Year Anniversary Player

Atop many of Clemson's defensive records still stands one of the ACC's 50-greatest players of all time...Michael Dean Perry. The defensive tackle still holds the Clemson career record for tackles for loss (61) and sacks (28). His six Pro Bowl appearances is also the most ever by a former Tiger.

Terrence Flagler 49

Greatest ACC Performances

Clemson's greatest performance by a runningback came on a wet and dreary day in 1986. Terrence Flagler amassed 274 all-purpose yards, including 209 rushing, at Wake Forest. Ironically, Flagler probably would not have even started in the game if it were not for an early-season injury to Kenny Flowers.

Ed Glenn 64

Making a Difference

Former Tiger tight end Ed Glenn is making a difference in the NFL. He is doing so off the field with breakthrough research of cartilage implementation, which will lead to recoveries that are not presently possible in a short time span. He was given a $240,000 grant from the NFL Charities to perform the research.

Tigers in the NFL ... 106-107

Clemson Football Tradition

Clemson's longstanding tradition of former Tigers on NFL teams continues in 2002, as 18 former gridders dot various rosters. The list includes some of the best players in the NFL, including Bronco defensive lineman Trevor Pryce, Eagle safety Brian Dawkins, and Seahawk linebacker Anthony Simmons.

Tigers Hope History Repeats

Clemson enters today's homecoming game with a 3-3 record. To those who have been around the program a few years, this year has brought back memories of the 1995 season. Tiger fans hope this season turns out like the 1995 regular season did.

That year, Clemson opened with a 3-3 record, with losses to Virginia, Georgia, and Florida State, the same three teams that have beaten Clemson through six games this year. The margins were even similar in two of the games. In 1995, Clemson lost to Florida State by 19 points. This year, the margin was 17. Georgia beat the Tigers by two points in 1995 and by three points this year.

The chart below shows many other similarities. The 1995 team was winning the total offense margin by 47 yards per game through six contests, similar to the way Clemson has won the total offensive margin this year by 85 yards per game. Clemson had 21 touchdowns through six games in 1995 and 20 so far this year. Turnovers committed are identical, 14 at this point. The starting quarterbacks, Nealon Greene and Willie Simmons, had nearly identical completion percentages.

Tiger fans hope the similarities continue. That 1995 team overcame the 3-3 start and ran the table over the last five regular-season games to finish 8-3 and earn a bid to the Gator Bowl.

Clemson Successful on Homecoming

Over the years, Clemson has had great success on homecoming and Tiger fans hope that continues today. The first homecoming game at Clemson was in 1922, a 21-0 loss to Centre. Clemson was 0-4-1 through its first five homecoming games, so it is almost surprising that the tradition continued. But, Clemson defeated Auburn in 1927 by a 3-0 score for its first homecoming victory.

There is no record of a homecoming game in 1930 or 1938, but the event has been held in conjunction with a football game every year since 1939, even through the war years. Clemson has a 56-19-3 overall record on homecoming.

The Tigers are 26-3-2 on homecoming since the 1971 season. The only three losses have been to Georgia Tech in 1989, Virginia in 1997, and last year to North Carolina. Clemson has played Wake Forest on homecoming 12 times, as the Tigers have a 10-2 record in those games. However, this is just the second time since 1975 that Wake Forest has been Clemson's opponent on homecoming. The only other occasion was in 1994, a 24-8 Clemson victory in Tommy West's first year.

Clemson Has Played Seventh Toughest Schedule

Clemson has a 3-3 record against a schedule ranked as the seventh most difficult in the nation by the Sagarin computer poll, a rating published by USA Today. Sagarin is one of the computer rankings used by the BCS standings. Clemson is ranked 34th overall in that ranking, one spot ahead of Virginia.

Clemson has losses to two top-15 teams so far this year, an undefeated Georgia team and a 5-2 Florida State team that lost by a point to top-ranked Miami (FL) last weekend. Florida State is ranked second in the Sagarin strength of schedule rankings and fourth overall, the only team in the nation ranked in the top 10 in both areas.

Clemson's highest schedule ranking in the history of the Sagarin poll is a #7 rating in 1999, Tommy Bowden's first year as head coach. Clemson was 6-6 that year, but still had a final top-25 ranking (24th) according to Sagarin's computer rankings. Clemson's highest overall final ranking by Sagarin is #15 in 2000.

Wake Forest Update

Wake Forest is off to a 4-3 start and the Demon Deacons come into today's game against Clemson riding a two-game winning streak. That includes a 36-10 victory over Duke in its most recent game on Wake Forest's homecoming. That game was typical for the Demon Deacons in that they make the most of their opportunities, especially on defense and special teams. The Demon Deacons gained just 224 yards of total offense against the Blue Devils, yet scored 36 points. Their scoring included a 90-yard missed field goal return and a 29-yard interception return. Wake Forest won the scoring battle in the second half 22-0.

Head Coach Jim Grobe's team is living testimony to the importance of turnover margin in football. Wake Forest has averaged 383.3 yards per game on offense and given up 383.0 per game on defense. But, the Demon Deacons have forced 22 turnovers and committed just five, a +17 turnover margin. Wake Forest is second in the nation in turnover margin per game.

Wake Forest likes to keep the ball on the ground, and as a result it leads the ACC in rushing yards per game with 233.4 yards per contest. It has accomplished that with a balanced attack, as no Wake Forest back is averaging at least 55 yards per game and no Demon Deacon back is in the top six in the ACC in rushing yards per game.

Nick Burney is the top rusher with 375 yards in seven games. Tarence Williams is a senior who has missed much of the year with an injury, but he was a Second-Team All-ACC back last year when he had over 1,000 yards. He is healthy now and had 14 carries last week against Duke.

Wake Forest is last in the league in passing, but quarterback James MacPherson has run the offensive efficiently. He has not thrown an interception in 133 passes and has completed 55.6 percent of his passes. His favorite receiver is Fabian Davis, who has 27 catches for 387 yards. Davis, a native of nearby Greenville, SC and J.L. Mann High, is second in the ACC to Clemson's Derrick Hamilton in all-purpose running with 156 yards per game. Like Hamilton, he returns punts and kickoffs in addition to his duties as a receiver.

Wake Forest has had a dominant player on defense in Calvin Pace. The senior has 16 tackles for loss and six sacks to rank among the ACC leaders. He is the team's top tackler, with 53 stops in the seven games. He had an incredible six tackles for loss in the win over Duke.

Clemson-Wake Forest Series

- Clemson owns 52 wins over Wake Forest in history, its second-highest win total over any opponent. Clemson has 59 wins over South Carolina.
- Clemson leads the series 52-14-1 overall, including a 29-7 record in games played at Clemson and a 25-7 mark in games played in Death Valley.
- Clemson has won three in a row and seven out of eight against Wake Forest dating back to 1994. The Demon Deacons won back-to-back games in 1992 and 1993, the only time Wake Forest has won consecutive contests against Clemson since 1946-47.
- Clemson has a 3-0 record against Wake Forest under Tommy Bowden. The Tigers have outscored Wake Forest 88-24 in the three games.
- Wake Forest has scored more than 20 points against Clemson just once in the last 13 years, the Demon Deacons 29-19 win at Clemson in 1998. Clemson won last year at Wake Forest 21-14 and the Tigers won the last time Wake Forest came to Clemson by a 55-7 score.
- The Clemson-Wake Forest series dates to 1933, a 13-0 Clemson win in Charlotte, NC.
- Clemson won 15 games in a row in the series from 1977-91.

Clemson has celebrated homecoming every year since 1939. The Tigers are 26-3-2 on homecoming since 1971.

- Wake Forest enters this game with a better record than Clemson (4-3 to 3-3). You only have to go back to 1999 to find the last time that has happened. That season, Wake Forest entered the game at Winston-Salem, NC with a 4-3 record, while Clemson was 3-4.
- The two teams have played at three neutral sites in history, including Tokyo, Japan. Clemson won that game in 1982 by a 21-17 score to close out an ACC Championship season.

Tiger Completion Percentage at Record Rate

Clemson is completing passes at a near 61-percent rate, a record pace. Clemson has completed 123 of 202 passes so far this season for a 60.9 rate. That is ahead of the 60.5 pace set by the 1997 Clemson team that was led by current Canadian Football League star Nealon Greene. The only other Clemson team to complete 60 percent over the course of the season is the 1989 Tiger team that was 117-195, exactly 60 percent.

Starting quarterback Willie Simmons has completed 58 percent of his passes so far this year on 109-188 passing. He has thrown for 1,199 yards and seven scores, an average of almost 200 yards per game. Clemson's reserves have had an impact on the percentage, as Tony Elliott, Charlie Whitehurst, and Jeff Scott are a combined 14-14 this season, including 11-11 by Whitehurst. The freshman is still six-consecutive completions away from Greene's record of 17 straight completions during the 1997 season.

Top Single-Season Team Completion %

1.	2002	123-202	60.9

Clemson Converting Before Halftime

Clemson has done a good job of scoring just prior to the half in 2002. So far this year, Clemson has recorded a touchdown on its last possession of the half with 80 seconds or less remaining in five of the six games.

The streak started when Clemson scored at Georgia on a 21-yard touchdown pass from Willie Simmons to Kevin Youngblood with just eight seconds left. The Tigers failed to do it against Louisiana Tech, but have now done so the last four games. The streak continued last week when Tye Hill scored his first career touchdown on a 32-yard run with just a minute left in the first half. Brian Mance had set up the score with an acrobatic interception.

Clemson's Last First-Half Possession (2002)

Game	Last Possession	Drive	Clock
UGA	Simmons TD pass	9-64-1:16	0:08
LAT	Failed to score	3-20-1:07	-----
GAT	Simmons TD pass	4-5-0:50	0:38
BSU	Hamilton TD run	3-21-1:03	1:20
FSU	Simmons TD pass	6-86-1:25	0:27
UVA	T. Hill TD run	1-32-0:08	1:00

Mance Has Nine Career Interceptions

Brian Mance recorded his third interception of the season and his ninth as a Tiger at Virginia last weekend. The play came just before halftime and led directly to a Clemson touchdown with just a minute left in the half.

Mance's nine career interceptions are best among active Tigers and his 10 total takeaways are also best among the active players. He is now ranked in a tie for 15th in Clemson history. One more will move him into the top 10. The senior from Alcolu, SC has now played 41 games as a Tiger, including 20 as a starter. He has missed just one game in his career, that coming when his brother lost his life in an auto accident last year after the N.C. State game. Tuesday, October 22nd will be his 21st birthday.

For the season, Mance has 34 tackles to rank fourth on the team. He has played more snaps (363) than any other Tiger and also leads the team in passes defended (8). Twenty-seven of his 34 tackles have been individual hits.

Clemson Leads ACC in Total Defense

Clemson is most improved when it comes to defense. The Tigers are ranked first in the ACC in total defense, allowing just 282.2 yards per game, and that figure ranks 10th in the nation. Clemson has allowed just 165.2 yards per game passing, 14th best in the nation. Last year, Clemson ranked 71st in the nation in total defense and 66th in pass defense.

Clemson allowed 395 yards a game last year, so it is easy to see the 282 figure for the first six games this year is considerably better. Clemson has allowed just 4.2 yards per play, much improved from the 5.3 allowed per play a year ago.

Many of the times the opposition has scored it has been the result of difficult field position after a turnover or a long kick return. Over the first six games, the opposition has taken possession of the ball at their own 38 or worse 49 times. They have driven for a touchdown just six times in those 49 possessions.

Yards/Play Allowed	5.3	4.2
Reception	13.4	9.4
Rush	3.8	3.1
First Downs/Game Allowed	21.9	17.2

Tigers Average 6.4 Yards per Play...Yet 0-2

Clemson gained 441 yards against Florida State in just 61 plays, an average of 7.23 yards per play. That was the highest yards per play average in Clemson history in a game the Tigers lost. The previous record was a 6.78 figure in a 28-25 loss to Maryland in 1959. In that game, Clemson had 434 yards in 64 plays. Clemson had won 33 in a row when averaging at least 6.5 yards per play dating to the 1975 season, when Clemson averaged 6.61 yards per play in a 25-21 loss to Duke.

Clemson followed that up with a 5.6 average at Virginia, yet lost the game. Over the last two games, Clemson has gained 853 yards in 139 plays, Tye Hill's 32-yard touchdown run late in the first half at Virginia last weekend was the fourth-straight week Clemson has scored a touchdown late in the first half.

an average of 6.4 yards per play. But, Clemson does not have a victory to show for it. The Tigers had 25 first downs at Virginia and held the Cavaliers to 80 yards on rushing 40 attempts. Additionally, Clemson had a pair of drives of at least 92 yards, the first time in history Clemson has had a pair of 90-yard drives in the same game. But, Virginia came away with the victory.

Hamilton All-Purpose Performer

The all-purpose running statistic was made for Derrick Hamilton. The sophomore from Dillon, SC has averaged 174.7 all-purpose running yards per game this year and has been especially effective in the last four games. He had 256 all-purpose yards against Georgia Tech on September 14, then followed that with 160 yards against Ball State. He added 248 yards at Florida State and followed that with a 206-yard game at Virginia. He has also had two of the top eight all-purpose running games in Clemson history over the last three weeks.

For the year, Hamilton has 177 yards rushing, second on the Clemson team, 238 yards receiving, third on the Clemson team, 427 yards in kickoff returns, and 206 yards on punt returns. He leads the Clemson team in both return areas. Last year, Hamilton finished third in the nation in kickoff-return average and was the ACC champion in that category. Thus, Hamilton has at least 175 yards in all four categories already this year.

His current average of 174.7 yards per game is 26 yards per game ahead of the Clemson record of 148.5 yards per game set by wideout Tony Horne in 1997.

Hamilton has been very effective when it comes to rushing. He has 15 rushes on reverses from his H-receiver position and has 177 yards, a 11.8 yards per carry figure. No Clemson rusher has ever averaged over 10 yards per carry given a minimum of 15 rushes for the course of a season. Five of his 15 carries have been for at least 10 carries, including a 77-yarder against Georgia Tech.

Entering the Wake Forest game, Hamilton ranks eighth in the nation and first in the ACC in all-purpose yards per game. Horne ranked 14th in the nation in 1997, the highest final ranking for any Clemson player in history.

To many Tiger faithful, Nick Eason is one of the most beloved players in the orange and white. Big #98 has produced a virtual highlight-film career since he arrived on campus five years ago, and not all the highlights are set in Death Valley. Eason has won numerous team, conference, and national awards for his continued community service. He graduated in three years with a degree in sociology and a minor in criminology, and he is set to earn his masters degree in the spring after this, his final season of eligibility.

"I wanted to get my degree and by the end of my second year, I realized I was ahead of schedule," said Eason. "I figured I would take advantage of my scholarship and go ahead and graduate early."

At that point in his college career, a trend emerged that has been with Eason his entire life. When he sets his mind to a goal, he works as hard as he can until he accomplishes it.

"I was in Clemson every summer working out for the upcoming season, so I always took summer school," stated Eason. "By my third year, I was taking somewhere around 20 hours a semester and 15 hours in the summer to finish up."

Somewhere in his five years as a Tiger, he has also managed to squeeze in some time to play football. Eason has become one of the most productive and respected players, not just on the much-improved Clemson defense, but on the entire team.

Prior to his years as a Tiger, Eason was a man among boys at Toombs County (GA) High School, where he earned all-conference honors as a junior and senior. During his senior year, Eason averaged 10 tackles a game as a defensive lineman.

He was also honored as the 2A Georgia Basketball Player-of-the-Year in 1997. Besides starring in football and basketball, Eason also lettered in track.

Coach Rick Stockstill recruited Eason and vividly remembers his leadership ability, even in high school.

"He had the same leadership qualities and work ethic in high school that he has exhibited here at Clemson," said Stockstill. "In high school, he worked extremely hard in every sport that he played, and in school, and when he got here, it just carried over."

In 2000, Eason emerged as the leader of the Tiger defense; and from his defensive end position, he recorded 11 tackles for loss, seven sacks, and 10 quarterback pressures. Playing on a defense that featured All-America linebacker and Butkus Award finalist Keith Adams, Eason was named the 2000 defensive MVP by the Tiger coaches.

Despite his excellent pass-rushing abilities, the Tiger coaching staff felt that his leadership abilities would best be utilized if he was moved inside, in order to get a talented young corps of pass rushers on the field with him. Initially, the transition was not as smooth as many would have hoped.

"At first I hated it," he said. "I really felt like my position was at end. I felt like I had been effective out on the edge especially after I had a great sophomore year. It was even tougher when I got hurt. I was already light. I was playing at 267 pounds. And it can be pretty frustrating when there's 600 pounds on you every play."

But, eventually Eason accepted this new challenge, and once again began to put in the necessary work to accomplish his goals. "I made the move for the team. They wanted me to move to the inside, so I did. I came out in the spring and tried to work as hard as I could to continue to learn. I put on about 20 pounds too, which has really helped."

As a result of his work ethic, Eason has made the transition a success. "I have four sacks already this year (entering the Wake Forest game). I feel better both mentally and physically. It took a while to adjust, but now I love playing inside. In fact, I'd rather be on the inside."

The decision has paid off for the entire Tiger defense in 2002. Through the Virginia game, the Tiger defense had allowed just 282 yards per game, a 114-yard improvement over last year. Thanks to the improved pass rush and tighter secondary, the Tigers have given up only 165 yards per game this season through the air, compared to 240.6 last season. That is also an improvement of almost 50 places in the NCAA team rankings.

Eason credits his teammates and first-year Defensive Coordinator John Lovett for the turnaround. "Coach Lovett is a great coach and I love him to death. He's very smart - he knows a lot about offensive schemes."

In addition to his God-given intelligence, Eason recognizes in Coach Lovett the same trait that many see in Eason - hard work. "He spends so much time studying film, he must stay there until 12:00 at night sometimes. With all that film, he can show us how to pick up on schemes easier."

"His philosophy is 'don't panic, maintain your role in the defense, and correct your mistakes,' and he follows that philosophy too," explained Eason. "He stays pretty calm and so does the defense. Every now and then he brings some fire, but he's just a really good teacher."

Eason has a healthy respect for his coaches and teammates; and despite his size, speed, strength, and ability, it might just be teamwork that lands him in the NFL. "If I want to get to the league, I have to stay within the framework of the defense. I have size and speed and all that other stuff, but my team will help me get there. If the defensive backs are sticking their guys, I can get a sack; otherwise I won't have any time to get to the quarterback. We're all in this together.

"Who knows what opportunities are going to come up. Right now, the NFL is way in the back of my mind. I want to win out the rest of the regular season and win a bowl."

Whatever happens with Eason's future, many local children will remember how he brightened their past. Eason is the most prolific volunteer among Clemson student-athletes, but he prefers not to focus on that.

"I only really spend about an hour at a time," said Eason. "It doesn't take too much to go to the playground or to a high school. I just love playing on the playground - it's my favorite place to be. I'm not in a race or competition, this just gives me a chance to get away from football and school for awhile and get into the community."

Everyone has his or her favorite Nick Eason story. Westminster Elementary Librarian Laura Keese fondly recalls some of her personal favorites.

"He has come to our school several times in the past, but I remember one year when he spent a lot of time with our second graders. A couple of years ago, the second grade took a field trip to Clemson. This was during all the construction in the East endzone, so Howard's Rock was not there. They were letting our children run down the Hill, and because the Rock was not there, Nick knelt down on the ground and let the second graders rub his head like Howard's Rock. The children just loved it."

Eason did not stop there. He visited the school several times throughout the year to read with students, and even more than that, just to spend time with the children and have a few laughs. According to Keese, the laugh-count hit an all-time high on the last day of school.

"On the last day of school that year, Nick came to school and let the second graders shave his head," said Keese. "They walked out of school that day with their hands cupped. They were holding Nick's hair in their hands, just like a treasure."

Eason, who has made a successful change from defensive end to tackle, is the leader of the Tiger defensive line.

Nick Eason was given the Humanitarian Award at the Humanitarian Bowl thanks to his community service. He has been named one of the ACC Top Six Award winners for community service four years in a row, the only ACC athlete to hold that distinction.

"It was wonderful. He was such a good sport. He had stripes running through his hair because they didn't cut off all of his hair, just patches. And he worked that day too! He had to go to work with some sort of stocking cap on his head, because he had stripes in his hair."

Eason does not limit his time to school children or members outside the Clemson community. He is often found laughing it up with Clemson students as well. In fact, one day during the spring of 2001, my friends and I gained first-hand experience.

I joined a band with some friends as the drummer. As one can imagine, the drums are much more cumbersome to transport than a guitar or amplifier, so the band used my living room as a practice space, much to the dismay of my neighbors (good sports one and all).

In the middle of practice one day, the door thundered open and there stood Eason, taking up the better part of the door way. I nervously anticipated a threat to "Keep it down. Or else...."

But instead, a smile came over his face and he excitedly asked, "What's up fellas? You mind if I jam with you?"

Relieved, we all chimed in, "Sure, man!" So he took over bass duties and slapped away at the fret board. We must have played for about 30 minutes with him in the lead, changing grooves whenever he felt the need. But that's Eason for you, he is a leader even with a bunch of aspiring musicians.

When I asked Eason about his favorite memory at Clemson, he replied without hesitation. "Rod Gardner's catch against South Carolina."

"I did not want to lose that game," exclaimed Eason. "Man, we had prayer circles on the sidelines - casting out demons, the devil, everything. And then Rod came through with a big catch. Whether he pushed off or not, I don't know - but we won the game and that's all I care about!"

In this day and age, many college students are happy to earn their degrees in five years and participate in a few organizations along the way. In that same amount of time, Eason will have earned two degrees, starred on the football field, held down a few odd jobs, maintained a GPA over 2.7, and donated countless hours to area school children. To say that Eason has made the most of his time here is an understatement.

Coach Stockstill credits his work ethic for his many accomplishments. "His work ethic on the practice field, in the weight room, and during the game is unmatched by anyone. I have a lot of respect for Nick and how hard he works at everything he does. Graduating in three years is a credit to him."

"He's a great example to young kids coming up that you can be a great football player and a great student also. You can graduate in three or four years if you put in the effort and still be able to accomplish your football goals. I've known Nick for seven years now, including the recruiting process, and I think he is a remarkable young man with a very bright future ahead of him."

When his playing days come to a close, Eason hopes to chase his other lifelong dream.

"I want to work for the Secret Service, or some type of protective agency," said Eason. "I just don't know if they'll let me protect the President or any at-risk official. I'm a team player and everything, but I'm not taking a bullet! I wouldn't leave him hanging out to dry - I'd probably just grab his hand so we could run away together."

"Working for the Secret Service is something I've always wanted to do. I had a chance to intern in Anderson, working with probation cases. It was a lot of fun and I met a lot of people. I guess I'll just have to start at the bottom and work my way up. Hopefully I can accomplish my dream."

With Eason's track record, don't be surprised if in a decade or so, a familiar looking guy with sunglasses and an earpiece is escorting the President through a crowd, live on CNN. That's just Nick - he put in the work and accomplished his dream.

The average American household is inhabited by 2.65 people. Growing up, Clemson senior defensive end Bryant McNeal's house was inhabited by 14 people. Born and raised in Swansea, SC, McNeal is the ninth of 12 children born to Evelyn and Robert McNeal.

In order by age, the six brothers and five sisters fall in line as follows: Barbara, Robert, Mike, Charlie, Timmy, Tamara, Sharee, Angel, Bryant, Gabriel, Eric, and Gina.

McNeal grew up in a five-bedroom, one-story house. The fifth bedroom did not actually come until later, when the garage was closed in, and it was there that McNeal lived with three of his brothers.

What was it like growing up with so many people in the house?

"It was kind of crowded," McNeal said. "Most of the time somebody was gone. The good thing was that you always had something to do. If you wanted to play video games, you always had somebody there to play with. If you wanted to play basketball, you always had somebody there to play with."

Now standing at an overpowering 6-5 and weighing in at 245 pounds of all muscle, McNeal does not seem the type who would have ever played basketball. However, basketball was the sport of choice of the McNeal family.

"We played basketball all the time," McNeal recalled. "In middle school, I was a little over six-feet tall, and I weighed about 150 pounds, so I was built more for basketball then."

Was he any good?

"No," McNeal answered quickly. "My brothers and sisters used to beat me all the time. Mike ended up playing basketball at Winston-Salem State, Angel played at USC-Spartanburg, and Tamara played at Claflin College. I wasn't near that level. I was definitely the worst one of the family."

McNeal's basketball skills improved during his sophomore year in high school, but his mind was on other things, particularly football. His mother, Evelyn, had different thoughts for her son.

"He was still kind of small for football, and I told him the big boys would hurt him," she recalled. "He was just too small. One day, I went into his room and saw him crying, and I told him that if that was what he wanted to do, I would let him."

She did not know at the time, but McNeal had already been playing football for over a week.

"Since Mom wouldn't let me play, I got Dad to sign the papers, and so for a while Mom didn't even know I was playing," McNeal recalled.

McNeal went on to play tight end and defensive end for Coach Robert Maddox at Swansea High School near Columbia, SC. The change in sports from basketball to football certainly paid off.

McNeal was a Class 2A All-State and All-Region selection after both his junior and senior seasons. He was selected to play in the North-South All Star game, was voted Region Defensive Player-of-the-Year after his senior year, and was named a PrepStar All-America defensive lineman.

In addition to his successes on the football field, shooting hoops with his sisters back in the day obviously helped McNeal succeed on the hardwood. He was voted his team's Most Valuable Player his senior season. He was also named All-Area in basketball that same season, averaging 12 points and 10 rebounds a game.

After his prep school athletics were complete, McNeal decided to play football at Clemson, and the decision was not a tough one.

"I knew from the time I was playing B-team football as a kid that if I would be good enough to play college football, I was going to play at Clemson," McNeal said. "I had always followed Clemson football, and there was no question in my mind that's where I wanted to play."

Although there was no question as to where McNeal would spend his next few years, he nonetheless took his official visit to the Clemson campus.

When he walked out on the practice fields to watch the team prepare for the 1996 Peach Bowl, then-Clemson head coach Tommy West said, "That kid looks just like Lorenzo Bromell."

Bryant McNeal

Lorenzo Bromell

For those of you who do not know Bromell, he was an outstanding defensive end for the Tigers who lettered in 1996 and 1997. He is currently playing his first season with the Minnesota Vikings after playing four seasons with the Miami Dolphins. The defensive lineman is a player who specializes in putting pressure on the quarterback. Sound familiar?

"Some of the guys on the team saw me and asked Bromell, 'Hey, man, is that your brother over there?'" McNeal recalled. "I remember him saying something like, 'I ain't got no brother.' They gave him a hard time about it, and they even called me 'Baby Bromell.'"

He's not sure if it is true or not, but McNeal says the resemblance between him and Bromell may have resulted in him being assigned #91, Bromell's number.

So do they really look alike? You decide (see photos).

After red-shirting the 1998 season, McNeal began making his mark in Death Valley in 1999, Coach Tommy Bowden's first year as Clemson's head coach. He had six tackles for loss as a freshman, which ranked him among the team leaders in 1999. He averaged 20 plays a game and was named Clemson's Rookie-of-the-Year on defense for 1999.

The year 2000 saw McNeal begin to make major contributions to the Clemson defense. Although he started in only one game, he averaged 30 plays per game. He had at least one tackle in every game with the exception of the Gator Bowl versus Virginia Tech.

Despite McNeal's accomplishments during the 1999 and 2000 seasons, the 2001 season was his breakthrough year. He was the team leader in tackles for loss (12), sacks (8), quarterback pressures (18), and caused fumbles (4) (a statistic that tied a Clemson single-season record).

McNeal started all 12 games as defensive end and averaged 57 snaps per game. He was third in the ACC in sacks and was tied for second in caused fumbles. He also was ninth in the conference in tackles for loss.

His play in the 2001 Humanitarian Bowl made him one of eight now-active Tigers who have played in three bowl games. Entering the 2002 season, McNeal was the leading returning quarterback sacker in the ACC.

McNeal has never missed a game. He has played in 42 straight games, 19 as a starter heading into today's game with Wake Forest. That hard work and determination has not gone unnoticed by his teammates and coaches. He is determined to make his senior year a special one.

He is among the ACC leaders in sacks again this year, and if he continues to play like he did at Bryant McNeal, the ninth of 12 children, grew up in a family that excelled in basketball, yet he has utilized his speed and athleticism to become a standout on the gridiron.

Florida State, a selection to the All-ACC team and an NFL draft day appointment could be around the corner. He had a season-high 10 tackles in Tallahassee on October 3, including a sack and two tackles for loss.

Former Clemson defensive lineman Brentson Buckner, now in his ninth year in the NFL, thinks McNeal can play at the next level. "I watched that Florida State game and I was impressed with McNeal. He stood out. He showed strength and quickness. You need that to play at the next level."

"He works hard day in and day out," said former roommate and fellow defensive teammate Ronny Delusme. "That work ethic has paid off for him on the field."

McNeal's work ethic has also earned him the label of "leader." "He's a great leader out there for us defensive guys," said Nick Eason, former roommate and McNeal's best friend.

Delusme agrees. "He's molded himself into a team leader. It's his hard work that has enabled him to be so successful."

Head coach Tommy Bowden has also seen McNeal mature. "He's very consistent with his play. He also has really good leadership qualities. Bryant isn't a real vocal leader; he leads in a different way. His leadership is all by action."

McNeal's contribution to the Clemson football team is obvious. This season, he has certainly made an impact. At Georgia, the once-tall, skinny kid returned a fumble 55 yards for the Tigers' first defensive score of the 2002 season.

"The whole summer, I thought about returning an interception or a fumble for a touchdown," McNeal said. "On that play, I saw the fumble, and I started running towards it, yelling, thinking somebody would pick it up. When I got there, it was still on the ground, so I just picked it up and ran."

"I was happy for him," recalled Eason. "I had already thrown my hands up (signal for touchdown); I knew he had it."

"Defensive scores are hard to come by," said Coach Bowden. "We haven't scored much on defense in my time here, so the times we have, they stand out. It's a huge momentum changer in any game, and surely in that game. It stands out."

The memory of scoring that touchdown ranks second on McNeal's list of most memorable moments. Ranking first is the 47-44 overtime win at #9 Georgia Tech in 2001.

"That was great," McNeal said. "They were a top-ten team. The year before, they had come to our place and beaten us on the last play when we were ranked #5 in the country. It was good payback to beat them at their place. That's my most memorable moment of playing football at Clemson."

Speaking of memorable moments, or not-so-memorable moments, a couple of McNeal's teammates say that when he is not busy working to improve his performance on the football field, he is busy playing around with fellow teammates.

Gregory Walker, McNeal's current roommate, recalls one of those not-so-memorable moments. "He's always giving people nicknames. A few summers ago, we lived together, and I was always singing. He got tired of it, so he started calling me 'Sebastian' from the movie The Little Mermaid. That little crab was always singing, so I guess that's why he gave me that nickname. Everybody found out about it and picked it up. It's sort of died down now though, I think."

Despite the nickname, Walker is thankful to have McNeal as a roommate and a friend. "He's a good friend. He's a good roommate. He's responsible, he's cool, and sometimes he has urges me to get up and clean. That's really good."

Eason agrees that McNeal is not the quiet, withdrawn person some people think he is. "He's not quiet. Everybody has been fooled ever since he's been here. Even the coaches don't see what we see. He's always giving people nicknames and then blaming it on me."

And what does McNeal's mom think about all this? "He's a big joker and a big teaser," she said. "He gets that from me. He's a fun person, and we're so proud of him."

Proud is an understatement. Some combination of McNeal's family is always in attendance at all of Clemson's football games. If someone is not able to go, McNeal always calls home after the game to talk; and he knows that whoever stays home is either watching the game on television or listening to it on the radio.

"It gives me chills to see him on television," said McNeal's mother. "I can't even watch half of the game, because I'm so nervous. Whether I watch or not, I'm so proud of him."

It is hard for Mrs. McNeal to imagine that little, 150-pound boy who could not even beat his sisters in basketball is now an impact football player playing on national television. Who would have thought?

Note: Clemson had more players chosen to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary Football team than any other school. Throughout the season we will highlight the career of all nine former Tigers who were named. Today we feature Michael Dean Perry.

Michael Dean Perry was the youngest of 12 children. The large family resided in Aiken, SC, where the Perrys were raised on athletics. They lived right across from the recreation center in Aiken, so Michael Dean and his siblings had no trouble finding their way into sports.

"When you see your older brothers do something, you want to do it too," he said of his interest in football and other sports at young age. "I have seven older brothers, and they were really good at football. I enjoyed playing it as a youngster, so I just kept playing."

He worked hard as a youth and it paid off, as he was named to all-conference and all-district teams three straight years at South Aiken High School.

Perry was highly recruited in high school, but not to the degree you would think for a player who would become an All-American in college and All-Pro in the NFL. His senior year, he fractured an ankle while dunking a volleyball.

"A lot of schools that were recruiting me pulled away (because of the injury)," he said. "I didn't have many choices after that. Clemson, South Carolina, and a few junior colleges continued to recruit me."

Perry came to Clemson in the fall of 1983. He was known as William Perry's "little brother" at the time, but it did not take him long to make a name for himself. Michael Dean relied on quickness for his advantage over opponents, where William relied a lot on strength and size.

Michael Dean was red-shirted his first year at Clemson. In 1984, he teamed with William to combine for 42 tackles for loss, still a Clemson record for tackles for loss by an interior line duo.

One of Michael Dean's most memorable college games was playing his first game side-by-side with William in Death Valley. "It was a good experience," said Perry. "We were playing Appalachian State; I think he got a sack and I recovered a fumble. It was a nice first game for me in Death Valley."

The next year, 1985, Perry was sidelined and played only seven games due to an injury in a pre-season scrimmage. (Remember the ankle he broke his senior year in high school? This was his other ankle.) He was also shuffled around to different positions, which made it difficult to become comfortable on the field. Perry played defensive tackle, defensive end, and outside linebacker.

After recovering from his injury, he came back with a vengeance. In the game against N.C. State, although he played only 26 plays, he had seven tackles and two pass breakups, caused a fumble, and had two tackles for a loss. And somewhere in there, he managed to record a sack. Busy day.

In 1986, Perry returned to his more customary defensive tackle position, as he was named First-Team All-ACC and was named an Associated Press and Football News Honorable Mention All-American. He achieved all this in 1986 by playing only 37 percent of the plays (323 out of 867 possible defensive snaps).

Michael Dean (left) and William Perry were both selected to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary team.

His senior season, 1987, Perry rose to another level. He led the Tigers in sacks (10) and tackles for loss (24), and was named a Second-Team All-American as well as ACC Player-of-the-Year, a rarity for a defensive player. He was also one of three finalists for the Outland Trophy and led the Tigers to a 10-2 season, Clemson's first 10-win season since the 1981 National Championship year.

Due to his hard work, the name Michael Dean Perry peppers the Clemson football media guide in defensive records. He set the ACC record for career tackles for a loss (61) and sacks (28). His brother, William, previously held both of those accolades. Those are still Clemson standards today.

One person who had a significant impact on both Perry brothers was Clemson defensive line coach Tom Harper, also known as the "Silver Fox."

"Coach Harper is the best coach I've been around...ever," said Perry. "I can't say enough about the guy. Tom Harper treated you like a young adult, even though we were 17, 18, or 19 years old. Most coaches called their players 'kids,' but Coach Harper called us young men."

Harper let Perry use his own judgement on the field. "When he saw athletic ability in someone, he catered to it," Perry said. "I was good at moving laterally and also vertically. Once he recognized that, he gave me the freedom to do what I wanted to do. If I saw something on the offense that would allow me to use my ability, he gave me that freedom."

Perry was a second-round pick of the Browns in the 1988 draft and was named to the All-Rookie Team at the end of the season. He played with the Browns through the 1994 season and then played for Denver for three seasons. Perry campaigned to be picked up by the Carolina Panthers in the expansion draft, but he was not picked up and thus played his final season with the Kansas City Chiefs in 1997.

During his 10 years in the NFL, Perry was named All-Pro four times and played in six Pro Bowls, more than any other former Clemson player in history. His name is among the all-time leaders in career sacks for both the Browns and the Broncos. While at Denver, he was chosen by his teammates as the defensive captain for the 1996 season.

Perry was a household name across the nation for his performance on the field, and for his personality, which is still the same today as it was then.

How many NFL players do you know who also delivered pizza? Those two jobs do not commonly go hand in hand, but that's a combination Perry can add to his resumé. He and his former teammate, Eric Metcalf, delivered pizzas on some Monday nights during his 1990 season with the Browns (as a promotion for Pizza Hut). Some lucky fans got their pizza delivered by a football player while watching Monday night football on television. What a deal!

"That was a fan appreciation type deal," Perry said with a laugh. "I'm one of the only guys who played pro football and delivered pizzas. Perry was so popular in Cleveland that McDonald's named a hamburger after him, the MDP. At the time, Michael Jordan was the only other professional athlete to have a McDonald's product named after him."

"It was a regional promotion, but it was quite an honor," recalled Perry.

So what does this football standout do in "retirement?" He now resides in Cornelius, NC with his wife, Trini, and three daughters.

"I'm just trying to raise my family and be a good father," Perry said. "That's about it. I live in a suburb of Charlotte that is nice and quiet. It's a wonderful place to raise a family."

But does he try to get back to the old glory days of sports?

"No," he said with a laugh. "I don't play basketball at all either. The last time I played, I played at a local gym; and a guy came under me and I sprained my ankle. That's pretty much the last time I played basketball."

Perry still follows the Tigers closely. He has come to many games since his retirement. Some of those times have been in conjunction with honors. In 2000, he was named to the Clemson Hall of Fame. This year, he was named to the ACC's 50-Year Anniversary team.

"I'm just the same old Michael," he said. "I was quite fortunate and blessed to get in the Clemson Hall of Fame a couple years ago. The Clemson family is so important, and I love being a part of it."

Mandie Parrish, a graduate student from Charlotte, NC, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Michael Dean Perry still holds the Clemson career records for tackles for loss (61) and sacks (28).

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, is first and foremost an architect. So it comes as no surprise that he came to the office with a clear blueprint of Clemson's future in mind - a future built around such ideas as collaboration, community, and quality.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities was named president in October 1999, having outlined for the Board of Trustees a vision of making Clemson one of the top-20 public universities in the country. From that vision came the development of a set of 10-year goals adopted in 2001 - goals that are already showing results, including:

- a 70 percent increase in research support over two years, earning Clemson a ranking as one of the nation's top 100 research universities;
- a capital campaign that raised $295 million;
- the enrollment of Clemson's brightest class ever, with an average SAT approaching 1,200;
- recognition in 2000 as Time Magazine's Public College-of-the-Year for its innovative communication across the curriculum program.

Barker attended the National Football Foundation and College Football Hall of Fame Banquet in New York in 2001. Above he poses with Tiger honorees Terry Kinard and Kyle Young.

Building a Future for Clemson

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson University and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has been awarded honorary doctoral degrees from S.C. State University and Mars Hill College, and has served on the Truman Scholars selection committee. He currently serves on the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the region's accrediting agency.

At Clemson, Barker co-founded the South Carolina Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

Success in athletics is important to Barker. The former high jumper at Clemson is omnipresent at Tiger athletic events and follows all of the school's programs closely. He recently directly chaired the three-person committee that hired new athletic director Terry Don Phillips.

The Barkers, Jim and Marcia, have two sons, 18-year-old Britt, a senior at Daniel High School in Clemson, and Jacob, 28, who works for an advertising agency in Greenville, SC. Jacob received his undergraduate degree from North Carolina, where he was also a member of the baseball team. He earned his master's degree from Clemson in 2002 and worked in the sports information office while he was pursuing that degree.

national champion and #4 Sooners. Before his arrival in 1995, the Cowboys had just three wins over Oklahoma in the previous 48 years. The Cowboys also won the first-ever Bedlam Championship in 2001, the all-sports competition between the two.

From a facilities enhancement standpoint, Phillips has significant experience, an important aspect to his new job at Clemson, where facilities improvements and corresponding fund-raising challenges command his attention immediately.

In Stillwater, the program compiled a long list of successful facilities projects, including the completion of nearly $65 million in new construction.

Gallagher-Iba Arena, the Cowboys' basketball arena, was expanded from 6,000 to 13,611 seats, and 14 suites were added. It was named the best college venue in the nation by CBS Sportsline. An equestrian center, softball stadium, women's soccer complex, golf training facility, and indoor baseball/softball facility were also a part of a broad range of facility improvements.

Phillips also supervised the planning of a $50 million renovation to Oklahoma State's football stadium that will add 2,300 club seats, 10 suites, and rebuilt concession, restrooms, press, and concourse areas. Additionally, Phillips and his staff raised approximately $20 million for capital projects, the most in the school's history, a $9 million budget growth to nearly $23 million, and a $1 million deficit reduction while expanding programs to conform with Title IX.

The Longview, TX native also knows how to attract and lead members of his community. He initiated the Orange Peel Rally, a student-produced spirit rally before the first Oklahoma State home football game that averaged approximately 20,000 in attendance. His blueprint for the event was Clemson's Tigerama, which had impressed him in 1978 when he made his first trip to Clemson with the Virginia Tech football team. The athletic program also started the Best of America Rally that introduced grade-school age youngsters to Oklahoma State University.

Phillips is the Chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all University and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions. He also serves on the Olympic Sports Liaison Committee. He served the Big 12 Conference on the Board of Athletic Directors, Bowl Subcommittee, and Post-Graduate Scholarship and Television Committees.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was also athletic director of the University of Southwestern Louisiana from 1983-88 and Liberty College from 1980-81. He was an assistant athletic director at Missouri from 1981-83 where he supervised athletic fund-raising. George Bennett, current Clemson Executive Director of IPTAY and a leader in that field, met with Phillips when he first accepted that position. Phillips began his administrative career in 1978 as an assistant athletic director at Florida, where he worked with Spring sports and student-athlete enrichment.

Phillips also has considerable experience in coaching. He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He then moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration. During his coaching career there, he served with former Clemson Head Coaches Charley Pell and Danny Ford, and worked directly under former Tiger defensive coordinator Tom Harper.

Winning has been in Phillips' resume since his playing days. At Arkansas, Phillips lettered on Frank Broyles teams of 1966, 1968, and 1969. The Razorbacks were a combined 27-5 in those three seasons and played in two Sugar Bowl games. Phillips played for the Razorbacks in the famous 1969 Arkansas-Texas game that decided the National Championship. One of the assistant coaches on the 1968 and 1969 Arkansas teams was former Clemson Head Coach Hootie Ingram.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (25) and Sarah Jane (21). He has three step-children, Meagan (13), Marshall (12), and Madison (10). He is married to Tricia Phillips.

Terry Don Phillips, his wife Tricia and children Meagan, Marshall and Madison are in their first football season at Clemson.

Terry Don Phillips is the newest addition to the Clemson athletic family, but he is no stranger to the world of college athletics. The long-time administrator and teacher is charged with the duty of leading Clemson into the new millennium. He will undoubtedly call on his vast experience in all areas of athletic administration to address the challenges set forth in the University's vision statement to become a top-20 public university. He began his tenure as Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002.

The three-person committee charged with finding a replacement for retiring 17-year Athletic Director Bobby Robinson found a perfect match for Clemson University in Phillips. His resume is one of the most impressive, well-rounded personal documents in college athletics.

Academically, Phillips has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's degree from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar and the American Bar Association. Phillips has also served in an adjunct faculty role at his previous stops and plans to continue to teach a course in legal studies at Clemson.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in just about all phases of college athletics. He served as an assistant football coach at Virginia Tech, supervised Spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and has 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level.

When it comes to success on the field and in the classroom, Phillips' programs have been among the best in the nation. The achievements of the Oklahoma State program during his tenure (1994-02) included a pair of national championships in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 Championships, and 11 individual national champions. Academically, he had 53 academic All-Americans from 1995-02.

Phillips knows the importance of rivalries and Oklahoma State notched four football wins over arch-nemesis Oklahoma in his tenure in Stillwater, including a 16-13 victory in 2001 against the defending

4th Year Head Coach

When Clemson was selected for the 2001 Crucial.com Humanitarian Bowl, it meant that the Tigers would be making their third straight bowl appearance - the third under Head Coach Tommy Bowden. With that selection, he became the first head coach to take Clemson to a bowl game in each of his first three seasons. That is something that prominent predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford, and Ken Hatfield failed to do. Under Bowden's direction, Clemson appeared in the Peach Bowl in 1999 and in the Gator Bowl in 2000 prior to its Humanitarian Bowl appearance.

Clemson made the most of that 2001 bowl appearance, defeating Louisiana Tech, 49-24 on New Year's Eve, Clemson's first bowl win since 1993. Clemson set school bowl records for points scored, touchdowns, and total offense in a bowl game in the victory. The Tigers threw five touchdown passes, a record for any Clemson game. The Clemson defense also limited the effectiveness of Louisiana Tech's nationally ranked offense, as the defense held Tech to but 10 points and 270 yards before reserves were summoned to the contest on both sides.

It was a record-breaking performance for the Tigers in Boise, ID, something that surprised no one who has followed the Tigers the last three seasons. In that short period of time, Clemson has set over 125 school records on an individual and team basis. Three of the top five total-offense seasons in school history have been recorded under Bowden, including the 2001 season when Clemson averaged over 30 points and 432 yards of total offense.

The 2001 season demonstrated Bowden's ability to win in the long run, as he had the second-youngest two-deep in the ACC. Thirty-four of his top 44 players were underclassmen. Only Duke had a younger group of top 44 players. Fourteen different freshmen saw action in 2001, including 10 who played in at least 10 games. Ten Clemson freshman records have been set under Bowden in his short tenure. In 2001, freshmen receivers caught 106 passes, while freshmen defensive players combined for 173 tackles and 15 tackles for loss.

Bowden has a record of 22-14 entering the 2002 season as Clemson's head coach. He has recorded that ledger against a difficult schedule. His first year, Clemson's schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished the season with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was Clemson's highest-ranked road win in 20 years.

He has also gained that record with a group of overachieving players. Of the 25 teams who have been to a bowl game each of the last three years, only East Carolina (two) has had fewer players drafted than Clemson (three) over that period. Two of the years Clemson has advanced to a bowl game under Bowden, Clemson did not have any players drafted (1999 and 2001).

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and #7 national ranking. In 1999, Bowden elevated the Tigers from 3-8 to a bowl game and a 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its highest win total since 1993.

As you can see, considerable improvement is a common phrase for Tommy Bowden coached teams. In each of his first four years he has coached at the Division I level, his team showed at least a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. Bowden is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and was one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson of UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

Bowden's second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Tigers were finalists or semi-finalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three finalists for the Butkus Award.

Kyle Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year, the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor-roll recipients. Eighteen of the 22 seniors on the 2001 team have already earned their degrees and two more will join them this year. The top-five semester GPAs on record have taken place under his seven-semester watch. Carson brought pride to the entire University last winter when he reached the final stage of the Rhodes Scholarship selection process.

The Bowden family: Lauren, Tommy, Linda, and Ryan.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal - improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third-toughest regular-season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over 1998, the greatest one-season jump in ACC history in league play.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history. Clemson has exceeded that touchdown total each of the last two years.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top-four tacklers in the league.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single-season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Four of Clemson's losses in 1999 came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top-ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses, and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but its offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the nation's only school to average over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. Tulane ranked fourth nationally in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw Tulane post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979, and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated Brigham Young in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. The Bowdens are the first family of college coaching, and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his eighth year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his second as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils' quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to the NFL.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator role, serving Kentucky as offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with Auburn for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top-25 seasons, including a #4 final ranking in 1993 and a #9 final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother, Terry, for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown (WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (20), a junior at Clemson, and Lauren (17) a senior at nearby Daniel High.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in average attendance 19 consecutive seasons.

In the 70s, 80s, and 90s, various publications named top-10 stadiums in college football and Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 211 games in the previous 60 years there (211-84-7) and has won over 71 percent of the contests. Thirty-six times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus.

The place would take some clearing-there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow, and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of as crowds swelled - the first in 1978 and the second in '83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

"When you get to the bottom of the hill, it's like you're in a hole and all around you are nothing but Clemson fans. Its like the crowd is one big voice. You feel like little kings."

Former Clemson running back Rodney Blunt

"Running down the hill is still talked about everywhere I go. Players who played against Clemson when I was in college remember us running the hill and thinking we would gain some type of spirit. The adrenalin rush was unbelievable for a Clemson player and quite a shock for the opponent."

Former Clemson All-American Jerry Butler

"There is no place louder or more picturesque than Death Valley. There, where Clemson folks see magic in a hill and a rock, orange gets more respect than anywhere this side of Gainesville, Florida."

Terence Moore, Atlanta Constitution

"The rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the hill, the adrenaline flows. Its the most emotional experience I've ever had "

Six-time All-Pro and former Clemson All-American Michael Dean Perry

"Florida was loud in the swamp. But, the loudest, not only the stadium, but the loudest place I have ever been around in my life was definitely Death Valley. I was yelling at he top of my lungs in that first series and I couldn't even hear what I was saying. My voice was gone after the second series, so we had to signal everything. That place was unreal in how loud it was. I don't think I will ever be in a louder place than Clemson."

Florida State Quarterback Chris Rix, 2001

"Clemson's record at home is not a coincidence. Running down the hill is a part of that record. You get so inspired, and so much of college football is about emotion. You get out of that bus and you hear the roar of the crowd and it gives you chills up and down your spine."

Former Clemson All-America kicker David Treadwell

"I came here knowing it would be loud and that Clemson would hit me hard, but to me, the noise was the biggest factor. I know I didn't concentrate as well because of it."

Herschel Walker after Clemson's 13-3 victory in 1981, his only regular season loss at Georgia.

"Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it really feels like they are on top of you. I would hate to be Georgia Tech or whoever else comes in here."

San Francisco 49ers Quarterback Steve Young

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. Afterall, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shut-outs in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

Running Down the Hill

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 286 times heading into the 2002 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"When Clemson players rub that rock and run down the hill, it's the most exciting 25 seconds in college football."

Driving the Carolinas

by Philip Sikes

Note: Each program this year, we will review the greatest games in Clemson history by position. Today we recall the greatest game in history by a Clemson runningback.

On a wet and dreary autumn afternoon at Groves Stadium in Winston-Salem, NC, tailback Terrence Flagler ran wild on the Wake Forest defense to lead Clemson to a 28-20 victory on November 1, 1986. His spectacular day earned him numerous honors and is deemed the greatest performance ever by a Clemson runningback.

Flagler scored all four touchdowns for Clemson in the contest. He ran for 209 yards on just 22 carries, nearly a 10-yard average, including two touchdowns. He also caught three passes for 65 yards and another pair of touchdowns.

Flagler totaled 274 all-purpose yards in the game, and that is still a Clemson individual single-game record.

He might not have been mentioned in this publication had it not been for an ankle injury to starting tailback and Heisman candidate Kenny Flowers. The ankle sprain to Flowers came during Clemson's second game of the 1986 season, allowing Flagler to become the starter and receive the bulk of the carries for the remainder of the year.

Flagler would not disappoint in light of new expectations. He rushed for 1,258 yards and scored 13 touchdowns in a memorable senior year. For his efforts, the 6-1, 200-pound tailback from Fernandina Beach, FL was named a first-team All-American.

Without a doubt, his finest game as a Tiger was against the Demon Deacons. He opened the game's scoring early in the first half when he sprinted 88 yards for a touchdown, a jaunt that is still tied for fifth longest in Clemson history and third longest on the road. After Wake Forest reeled off 13 straight points to gain the lead, Flagler again scored a touchdown, this time on a 50-yard scamper to give the Tigers a one-point edge going into halftime.

Wake Forest scored early in the third quarter to take the lead for a second time, but Flagler and the relentless Tiger offense refused to let up on the Demon Deacons. Clemson answered immediately after quarterback Rodney Williams, who was celebrating a birthday that afternoon, found Flagler open for a 39-yard touchdown strike to regain the lead.

As time ran out in the third quarter, Flagler put an exclamation point on his performance. Williams rolled out to the right, and then threw back across the field to the left sideline to Flagler. He split two defenders and made a spectacular diving catch from 21 yards out to score his final touchdown.

"Of the four touchdowns, that was my favorite because it had a high degree of difficulty," Flagler told the Greenville Piedmont. "On the two runs, the offensive line did such a great job of blocking that I just had to make a cut or two and I was gone."

Flagler accounted for over half of Clemson's 495 yards of total offense, a phenomenal feat. In the process, he became the only Tiger to ever rush for two 200-yard games during the course of the same season. Flagler had previously hit the 200-yard mark earlier in the year against Virginia.

Flagler's unbelievable performance left Wake Forest coaches and players scratching their heads in awe of what had just taken place.

"Flagler is far and away the best back we've seen since I've been here," Wake Forest linebacker Steve Lambert told reporters following the game. "We played solid defense against them today, and we only missed him a couple of times. But each time we did he scored a touchdown."

Lambert was not the only Demon Deacon praising the Tigers' star following the game. Former Wake Forest head coach and current Virginia Head Coach Al Groh simply stated that "if Clemson's got a guy (Flowers) that's a Heisman candidate, then Flagler is a candidate for Mr. Universe."

Flagler became the first Clemson player to score four touchdowns in a single game since Fred Cone accomplished the feat against Auburn back in 1950. Needless to say, he was honored as the ACC Offensive Back-of-the-Week for his efforts at Wake Forest.

But the honors and records would not stop there. He was also named the Carquest Player-of-the-Game for his performance. The 209-yard rushing total remains the seventh highest in Clemson history. At season's end, he was the 1986 runner-up for ACC Player-of-the-Year. He was named an All-American by five different publications. He was also an All-ACC honoree, as recognized by the ACSWA and Associated Press. His performance in Winston-Salem that day had a lot to do with those accomplishments.

The win over Wake Forest helped the Tigers on their way to an 8-2-2 overall record, an ACC championship, and a Gator Bowl victory over Stanford in Jacksonville, FL. Flagler, who finished the season third in the NCAA in yards per carry, was perhaps the biggest reason. While his outstanding game may have surprised many, one person it did not was Williams, Clemson's all-time winningest quarterback.

"Flag' is always a threat for the big play," Williams told the Columbia Record after the game. "He's got so many moves that he's going to make three or four miss before they get him. I just love to hand the ball off to him and watch him run. He amazes me every time."

Flagler's emergence into the spotlight proved his ability to overcome all odds and circumstances. First of all, he had to make it through nagging injuries in his first three years at Clemson to even become the team's starter. Secondly, he had an interesting problem with his vision that not many outside of his teammates knew existed. Flagler wore glasses off the field to correct a nearsighted condition. However, he chose not to wear contacts while playing football. That brought several reporters to question his ability to see the field as well as he could, a question that came up after the Wake Forest game.

"I never have had any problems seeing things on the football field," Flagler said. "If they're close enough, I can see them. If they're far away, I don't even worry about them."

He certainly did not have any problem seeing the opposition on that November afternoon. His incredible vision on the field combined with his quickness and natural instincts make him one of Clemson's greatest runningbacks. The Wake Forest game silenced all who questioned his vision and elevated him toward the top of Clemson's long line of great runningbacks.

Flagler was the 25th pick of the 1987 NFL draft, taken by the San Francisco 49ers. He won two Super Bowl rings with the team, primarily used in a backup role during his five-year career. However, his lasting mark in football came at Clemson. He won the hearts of the Clemson faithful with his brilliant performances and his toughness. The game he had against Wake Forest was the greatest ever by a Tiger runningback and is not likely to be forgotten anytime soon.

Philip Sikes, a senior from Aiken, SC, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Flagler rushed for 209 yards and caught three passes for 65 yards, as he totaled four touchdowns at Wake Forest in 1986. His last score came on this spectacular diving catch.

While most college football players dream of playing in the NFL, Ed Glenn's dream was to be the World's Wrestling Heavyweight Champion. No, not really, but he did list that as an ambition on a form he filled out for the SID office when he came to Clemson in 1991. His real dream was to be a part of the NFL, not as a player, but as a doctor. His current occupation could have a major bearing on the health of NFL players in the future.

Glenn was a freshman walk-on turned senior starting tight end for Clemson from 1991-1994. He is now completing his medical residency at Vanderbilt, where he was named as this year's "Best Consultant to the Emergency Department." He and another resident were recognized by the Department of Emergency Medicine on the basis of their expertise, provision of ED care, and the collegial manner in which they interacted with the ED staff.

Glenn and doctor, Eric McCarty, have been researching ways to speed up the cartilage transplant option. They were given a $240,000 grant from the NFL Charities to study cartilage implementation.

The main purpose of their study is to see how cartilage from a donor compares to cartilage that is from the patient. They are currently using dogs as subjects. As Glenn explains, "The ultimate application to humans would be to take cartilage from someone else and to implant it into a person's joint affected by arthritis. That would be better than having to take cartilage from that person's own knee and transfer it to the defect. This study will hopefully benefit people from athletes to weekend warriors."

Glenn and McCarty test two options for implementation in the dog's knee. To do this, they take cartilage from a dog's knee or cartilage from a donor dog. Glenn has done almost all of the operations on the 27 dogs.

"We're trying to show there is no difference between the dogs with donor cartilage and dogs with their own cartilage," said Glenn. "This would mean we could take the cartilage from other donors and not sacrifice a patient's cartilage. We've been working on this for almost a year and have looked at the dogs' knees at three months and at six months."

"So far there is no significant difference (in donor recipient dogs and dogs with their own replaced cartilage). The last portion of the study is to look at the dogs at 12 months. Then we'll see how well the grafts have incorporated. So far, everything looks really good."

If the 12-month data is just as promising as the six-month data, the next phase of the project will be to compare frozen donor cartilage to fresh.

Glenn's interest in sports medicine stems from his days playing football at Clemson. "To be honest, the only reason I went to medical school was to do orthopedic surgery," Glenn said. "I became interested in it from Dr. Larry Bowman (Clemson's orthopedic surgeon). He seemed to enjoy what he does. It is also a good way to continue my association with athletics beyond the playing days."

However, when he first came to Clemson, he thought he wanted to become an orthodontist. "It seemed like an easy job at the time because it looked like the hygienists did all the work," Glenn laughed. "But when I really thought about it, I didn't want to be in anyone's mouth all day."

Glenn was named the top ACC student-athlete among football players in 1995. Today, he is putting that education to work trying to limit football knee injuries.

For someone who joked about an easy job, Glenn chose a tough way to achieve his goal. Glenn graduated from Clemson with a 3.9 GPA in biochemistry and was named an Academic All-American. He also won the Jim Tatum Award as the top scholar-athlete football player in the ACC.

Afterwards, he tackled one of his biggest adversaries: medical school at Vanderbilt. "I came in thinking that since I was able to balance school work and athletics at Clemson, so I'd have this big advantage in medical school," admitted Glenn.

Apparently, anatomy class was his first challenge. "When I took my first test in anatomy, I was blown away; in fact, I barely passed it," he said.

He then had to rearrange his studying style completely and forgo much of a social life. Glenn gave up running and shortened his workout time to one hour a day. His daily schedule was pretty routine...get up, study, go to class, eat, study, workout, study, eat, study.

"Medical school was pretty much one of the more miserable experiences of my life," Glenn said. "I couldn't believe everyone was so smart. I had to study from 3:15 PM until 1:00 AM every day with maybe an hour dinner break."

After the initial anatomy class setback, Glenn got back on track and graduated in the top-10 percent of his class. He was also voted into a medical honor society and awarded an orthopedic clerkship.

With all those hours devoted to studying, Glenn had a hard time keeping up with Tiger football. His first year in medical school, he came back for the Clemson-Florida State game to receive the Weaver-James Post Graduate Scholarship Award at halftime. That was the only game he would see until his third year. Glenn was able to come back for only two games his fourth year. He still does not get to see a lot of games because there is not too much Clemson coverage on television in Nashville. Another team in orange (Tennessee) dominates the coverage.

"I listen to Jim Phillips call the game on the Internet if I have time," he said. "Otherwise, I just catch highlights on ESPN or talk to my parents."

Just because he cannot keep up with Clemson football as he would like doesn't mean Clemson is not on his mind. "I still miss Clemson," he admits. "I keep joking with Dr. Bowman to let me know when he's going to retire so I can come back and be Clemson's orthopedic surgeon. I'm half joking and half serious, but I'd love to come back."

"Ed was a really bright athlete," Dr. Bowman said. "We'd love to have him come back and join the group; he's got what it takes. I think he got hit just enough times in the head a practice to want to do orthopedics. He's too smart to do orthopedics."

It is not just Clemson that Glenn misses, but football as well. When he graduated in four years in the spring of 1995, a lot of the guys he played with were still playing football while he was in his first year at Vanderbilt.

"That's the thing with football...when you're done, you're done," Glenn said. "It's not like basketball where you can play pickup anytime. So it was really hard my first year because it was the first year since I was six that I didn't play football."

Glenn had worked hard since he was six to attain his goal of playing football at the collegiate level. North Carolina, Duke, Wofford, Army, Air Force, and Furman recruited him, but Clemson was always first in his heart.

"I remember going to Clemson football games with my dad (a Clemson electrical engineering graduate) as a kid," said Glenn. "In the back of my mind, I knew I wanted to attend Clemson."

But Clemson didn't offer him a football scholarship. However, he did not let that affect his goal to play football in Death Valley. He walked on the team as a freshman and was red-shirted. His sophomore year, he set his sights on making the travel team and checked that off his 'to do' list as well.

He was set to start a couple of games his sophomore year due to injuries to starters Ty Gibson and Stephon Wynn. But as bad luck would have it, he suffered a partial tear in the calf muscle of his right leg and was resigned to sit on the sidelines. He did not let that discourage him, as he came back to play the last three games of the year.

Glenn continued to make progress to achieve his goals. Goal three: play more his junior year. Check, as he played in 11 games during the 1993 season. Goal four: ask new Head Coach Tommy West for a scholarship. Check.

During his senior year, he started six games and played in all 11. He caught three passes and was a strong blocker in Clemson's run-oriented offense. He also won the Lifter-of-the-Year Award for the football team. Off the field, he received the Jim Tatum Award, given to the top senior student athlete among ACC football players. He also was selected to the 1994 Hitachi/CFA Scholar-Athlete Academic All-America team.

One of his goals now is to complete his residency, which he is set to do in 2004. He then hopes to proceed to a sports medicine fellowship and become a team physician affiliated with a university.

He has one in mind.

A Message to Our Boosters

Tiger fans, thank you for your support! As a fan, NCAA rules could define you as a "representative of our athletics' interests" or a "booster". Once identified as one, you hold this identity forever.

NCAA rules limit our booster's actions. Boosters may not try and persuade prospects, their family members or their coaches to attend a particular school. Additionally, boosters may not provide or arrange financial assistance, transportation or living expenses for a prospect, their families or friends. There are some NCAA rules that do allow boosters to help Clemson. For example, if you know of any outstanding prospects in your area, send information such as newspaper clippings to our coaches and let them contact the prospect on Clemson's behalf. You can also join IPTAY. IPTAY helps provide scholarship costs for Clemson's ten men's and nine women's teams.

Once a prospect becomes a college athlete NCAA rules prohibit anyone other than their family to provide benefits. A full scholarship covers basic educational needs, and those student-athletes with severe financial need can receive Pell grants up to $4,000 and they also can use funds from NCAA special assistance. NCAA rules strictly prohibit booster involvement with prospects and student-athletes. The penalties for ignoring these rules are too great. Help Clemson athletics operate free of booster problems. If you suspect a violation or have questions about a particular NCAA rule, call Clemson's compliance services.

Gambling

The Clemson athletic department asks for your cooperation in protecting intercollegiate athletics from the perils of gambling. Not only does the NCAA and Clemson oppose all forms of legal and illegal sports gambling, but it's against the law!

Did you know that sports wagering or gambling activities by Clemson athletic administrators, coaches and student-athletes are violations of NCAA rules and regulations? Please refuse to engage in these activities since penalties for these violations are severe. Violating these rules can result in permanent dismissal, suspension or loss of eligibility for your beloved Tigers.

The NCAA defines wagering and gambling activities as:

- Providing information to individuals involved in organized gambling activities involving NCAA events.
- Soliciting or accepting a bet for cash or prizes on Clemson or any NCAA team.
- Placing bets on any NCAA or professional athletic events through a bookmaker, parlay cards or other means used by organized gambling.

Amateurism & Agents

NCAA rules require student-athletes to maintain their amateur status if they want to participate in NCAA competition. Student-athletes will lose their amateur status if they use their skill for pay or accept promise of future pay while still competing for Clemson. Additionally, student-athletes may not sign a contract with a pro team, receive a salary or expenses from a pro team, compete on a pro team or ask to be placed in a pro draft, or enter into an agreement with an agent.

Once a student-athlete's intercollegiate athletic career is over and the student-athlete has interest in playing professionally, an agent is hired for the purpose of marketing their athletics ability. However, if a student-athlete with eligibility remaining enters into a verbal or written agreement with an agent before their eligibility is complete, they will no longer be able to compete for Clemson. In addition, student-athletes may not accept transportation, clothing, meals, lodging, or any benefit from an agent

Conclusion

NCAA rules are complex and at times may seem confusing. Again, thank you for your support of Clemson and its athletics' program!

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, "Tiger Tailgate Show" "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Fifth Quarter Show."

A Clemson tradition since the 1970s, the "Tiger Tailgate Show," is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program produced from the stadium. In year's past, it has been done from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum in front of the Tiger statue. But due to renovations at that facility, the "Tailgate Show" will be produced on the lawn (at the corner) closest to Death Valley.

The program begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love and Hudson along with Joe Erwin and Duane Evans play host to the show that is attended by many Clemson fans. It is the gathering place on gameday. Interviews with former Clemson players, games, display items, and pre-game excitement are all part of the program.

The game broadcast is anchored by Jim Phillips, the longtime voice of the Tigers. The legendary voice and Clemson Hall of Famer is in his 35th year broadcasting Clemson athletics. His career dates to 1968 when he provided commentary on games coached by Frank Howard. He is one of the most respected announcers in the nation and is the dean of all ACC announcers.

Joining Phillips in the broadcast booth will be former Clemson quarterback Rodney Williams. Also a member of the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame, Williams worked the sidelines on Clemson broadcasts for six years. With Mike Eppley's retirement from the broadcast booth, Williams will join Phillips and provide color commentary. Williams is the winningest quarterback in Tiger history. He led the Tigers to 32 wins from 1985-88, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State, and Oklahoma.

Providing commentary and updates from the sideline will be Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg was a member of the broadcast team last year providing score updates during the game and by playing host to the post-game show. Yanity is one of the most knowledgeable broadcasters in the South and has covered Clemson football for over 15 years.

As has been the case in the past, the gameday broadcast will begin with the Tommy Bowden Pre-game Show. Bowden will meet with Jim Phillips to provide Clemson fans with the latest lineup and strategy information as his Tigers prepare for another competitive contest. Phillips, Williams, and Yanity will also provide a last minute scene setter that will include the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, Yanity and former All-ACC Tiger Will Merritt will play host to the Fifth Quarter Show. Interviews with Coach Bowden and assistant coaches Brad Scott and John Lovett also will be included. An added feature will include lockerroom interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of the game's statistics and audio highlights will be provided. Scores and reports from the day's top games will also be provided.

Fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" from area Ingles Grocery Stores, a one-hour program with Bowden and Phillips. This broadcast will air live each Thursday evening from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. It can be heard on most of the Clemson Tiger Sports Properties network affiliates. The show will begin Thursday evening, August 29.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties also will produce the Tommy Bowden Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. The program will give Clemson fans insight into the coaches decisions during the previous game and take an up close and personal look at some of your favorite players.

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last three years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer throughout his/her career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

BREAK FROM TRADITION.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Voridian's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Voridian® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

And you know that with a few flat rocks and some falling water, Mother Nature makes a pretty amazing playground. You see, we think it's our job to know you well, to discover things that don't appear on a checking account application or the back of an ATM card. We believe knowing people better makes us... well, better people. You'd be surprised how it makes us a better bank. Carolina First. We have a pretty good sense of where we are.

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first facility in the country built solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

Academic Commitment

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson student-athletes posted an overall GPA of 2.85, the highest on record, for the spring semester of 2002. A record 37 student-athletes earned selection to the President's List with a perfect 4.0 for the semester, while 104 made the Dean's List, just one off the all-time semester record.

Two-hundred-and-twenty-one Clemson student-athletes earned at least a 3.0 or better for the semester, meaning nearly 50 percent of all Clemson student-athletes were on the academic honor roll. Seven of the 15 programs had a semester GPA of at least 3.0.

The Clemson football team had a 2.56 team GPA for the semester, second best on record behind the 2.58 achieved in the spring of 2001. Each of the top-five semester GPAs achieved by the Clemson football program have taken place within the seven semesters Tommy Bowden has served as head coach. Nine Clemson football players graduated last year, meaning 18 of the 22 seniors who dressed for the Humanitarian Bowl earned their degrees.

Many prominent Clemson athletes were named to the academic honor roll. Kyle Young and Chad Carson, both first-team Academic All-Americans in 2001, concluded their Clemson academic careers with a perfect 4.0 semester in the classroom.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutorial program.

Of 450 tutoring programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted all three levels of certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of only six schools across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Dick Hendley Micro-computer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on the weekend. Vickery Hall is now a "wireless facility" which allows students in the building with laptop computers to access the campus mainframe without physically plugging into the system.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

Personal Development Commitment

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

Career Development Commitment

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the Vickery Hall staff. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

The SAEP career assistance program has a full-time career counselor housed in Vickery Hall. Unique to our program, the career counselor is a member of the Michelin Career Center staff as well as the Student-Athlete Enrichment staff. This link between athletics and the Michelin Career Center provides student athletes the most up-to-date information and resources in career development and preparation for entrance into the job market upon graduation.

Service Commitment

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top Six by the ACC.

LifeLine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LifeLine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators, we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he or she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with members of the media.

Athletic Commitment

Nine Clemson athletic teams posted top-25 finishes in 2001-02, contributing to Clemson's #27 finish in the Sears Director's Cup. Clemson set a school record for points scored in that national ranking and the finish was its best in four years. Clemson had 29 All-Americans, its third-highest total ever.

Clemson had a spring to remember as the Clemson golf, men's track and field, and baseball teams all finished in the top four in the nation. It marked the first time in school history that three different sports finished in the "Final Four" in the same spring. Clemson was the only school in the nation to finish in the top four in all three of those men's spring sports. The women's track and field and rowing teams also finished in the final top 25 during the spring.

Clemson boasted some of its greatest athletes in history in 2001-02. Clemson became the second school in history to have the National Player-of-the-Year in golf and baseball in the same academic year. D.J. Trahan won the Jack Nicklaus Award as the top player in college golf, while baseball shortstop Khalil Greene was national Player-of-the-Year according to the Baseball Coaches Association, Collegiate Baseball, Baseball America, and many other services. Women's track and field All-American Jamine Moton won the NCAA Outdoor championship in the hammer throw.

WE'RE NOT THROWIN' UP BRICKS

South Carolina Steel Corporation had the ideal game plan for Littlejohn Coliseum when the Tigers needed a new roof. We teamed with C.P. Buckner to provide an innovative solution for a complex, schedule-driven dilemma.

Replacing the Tigers 90,000 square foot roof structure with 950 tons of steel in 10 weeks wasn't easy. In fact, many doubted the Tigers could start their new season in Littlejohn.

South Carolina Steel Corporation and C.P. Buckner beat the shot clock and scored, replacing the roof with a stronger, better looking structure.

With over 50 years of experience designing and building structural steel solutions, South Carolina Steel Corporation knows the game. The next time you need to score big, call us at 864-244-2860.

IPTAY Endowment Program

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $16 million in 2001. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square-foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever."

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure, the Tigers won 165 games, 100 of which were against conference foes.

"Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson."

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party, we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program, and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals, and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 Clemson graduate, was a three-year letterwinner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding.

"When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment, four other football endowments were made, and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed.

"From the free safety to the #3 player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports."

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement, Clemson University will have a very secure future for generations to come.

NOW THAT'S A DREAM TEAM!

Clemson football runs through the blood of the Young family, and Kathy Young is right at the core of it. Kyle, Mrs. Young's youngest son, says that she has a "deep love for Clemson University that stems from her father."

Her father, Ed McLendon, played football on Clemson's 1939 Cotton Bowl championship team. Her son, Will, played offensive guard from 1992-95 and Kyle played center from 1998-01. In addition to those past players, Mrs. Young's husband, Ron, is the television timeout referee at home football games in Death Valley.

Growing up, Mrs. Young moved around a lot. Since her father was a high school football coach, she has called Charleston, Mullins, and Winnsboro, SC home. Even though her father played football here, the family was not able to come back to any games because her father was coaching high school football on Friday nights and breaking down his own tapes on Saturday.

When Mrs. Young was 12, she started coming to Clemson games with her friends. Once she started coming to the games, she remembers seeing the kids playing on the Hill and thinking what a wonderful place this would be to grow up. She is very thankful that both of her boys were able to grow up in Clemson.

After high school, Mrs. Young decided that she wanted to attend Clemson University. At the beginning of the second semester of her senior year, she got back to Clemson on a snowy night and needed help unloading her car. Mrs. Young's roommate's boyfriend brought his roommate, Ron, to help her with her things. That is how she met her future husband. She graduated in 1973 with a degree in early childhood education and was married in that same year.

It seemed as though Mrs. Young was destined to become a teacher. Her father was a teacher and a principal, her mother was a school secretary, and her sister was also a teacher. She taught for 24 years, and she really enjoyed it throughout that time. She taught kindergarten and first grade, and she was the director of Fort Hill Presbyterian Preschool.

Not surprisingly, with her family history, both of her sons decided to go into the teaching profession. Will graduated from Clemson with a degree in secondary education. He is now teaching and coaching high school football at Travelers Rest High outside of Greenville, SC. His wife, Michelle Thieke Young, who played volleyball at Clemson, is also in coaching. She is the head volleyball coach at Furman. Michelle and Will have a son, Brody, who is 14 months old. Mrs. Young gets to watch him a couple days each week and she says he is the "joy in my life right now."

Kyle graduated with a degree in secondary education and a minor in economics from Clemson. He is now working towards his Ph.D. in education at Virginia Tech. Kyle is also working as an intern in the athletic department there, so he continues to have that tie to athletics. Jamie Watson Young, his wife of only a few months, also graduated from

Kathy Young

Clemson with an undergraduate degree in graphic communications and a graduate degree in human resource development.

Mrs. Young believes both Will and Kyle chose to go into teaching as an avenue to stay involved with sports. Sports have always been a large part of the family's life. Her husband has continued to stay in sports as well. He is a high school referee and continues to be the television timeout coordinator at Clemson home games.

"He is the one everyone boos," says Mrs. Young of her husband's job as television referee.

It was always the dream of her two sons, Will and Kyle, to play football here. They used to dress up in their Clemson helmets and jerseys, and run down the hill in their back yard while she sang "Tiger Rag."

Mrs. Young helped make all their dreams come true by always giving them her support. Her oldest son, Will, said, "She always encouraged us to pursue our dreams."

Her most memorable moment of her time in Clemson was watching each of her boys run down the Hill for the first time.

Not only did she give support to her own sons, but also to any football player who decided to come to her house for dinner. She supported these young football players through their careers. It is difficult to be a college football player; there are always ups and downs. You need someone strong to be there for you. It was difficult for her to be that support for her sons, but she did it.

"If I ever felt something was bad, she would always shine the light on the positives," said Kyle.

The emotional roller coaster is something that she will not miss now that her sons are done playing football. She will miss the camaraderie she had with other parents, the players, and the coaches.

Even though her sons are not playing, she promises, "We will still be a part of Clemson forever. It is not quite as personal, but we still love those Tigers."

This support she has always given to Clemson football is only one of the reasons Mrs. Young was named Tiger Brotherhood's Mother-of-the-Year. The award is given annually by Tiger Brotherhood to a mother who has made considerable contributions to her family, her community, and to Clemson. She does all of that and more.

By contributing to her family, she has contributed a lot to Clemson. She has raised two All-ACC football players for Clemson, and supported many other players including Will Merritt, another All-ACC offensive lineman who also played at Clemson from 1998-01. Merritt considers Mrs. Young to be his "2-mile away mother." "Behind the scenes was Kathy Young, she was the one pushing us," said Merritt. "The award is well-deserved and well-past due!"

Mrs. Young also serves the Clemson community in many ways. She has fed many members of the football team, which can be a full-time job with as much as football players can usually eat. She is also active in "Meals on Wheels" in the Clemson area. The First Baptist Church of Clemson is another area that owes Mrs. Young a debt of gratitude for the work she performs there.

When Mrs. Young was asked about her philosophy on life, she said she did not really have one. She just "tried to teach (her) children to be true to themselves, that friends are most important things in your life, and to enjoy every experience, the good and the bad, because you can learn from both."

She believes that her children followed her teachings, especially with their football careers. They realized that "in football, there were good times and bad times; they were the experiences that built them into the men they are today."

With that philosophy on life, Mrs. Young has been able to make an impact on so many people in the Clemson community.

Tiger Brotherhood is an honorary service fraternity at Clemson. It still embraces the same basic tenets as established by its founders, led by John Logan Marshall in 1929. Tiger Brotherhood promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct, while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with a typical Clemson gentleman.

The organization embodies an unequaled cross-section representation of the Clemson community. Students, faculty, and staff all work with the bonds of brotherhood to champion a closer relationship. One for all and all for one, with Clemson and its many traditions and undying spirit as the central focus, today provides viable, flexible, and a continuing forum for ideas and unending service to Clemson.

Today, the Clemson Tigers will square off against the Wake Forest Demon Deacons. The game is particularly special for Clemson because it marks the date for Homecoming 2002. One of the groups that will be leading the homecoming celebration is the band that has been "Shakin' the Southland" for years, the Clemson University Tiger Band.

In honor of Homecoming 2002, the Tiger Band will be performing a unique tribute at halftime. Following the annual ceremony to honor Clemson's Homecoming Queen, the band will pay tribute to its alumni members by inviting them onto the field to play along in a rendition of "Tiger Rag."

"Today's game marks the 20th anniversary of the alumni band," said Dr. Mark Spede, Director of Tiger Band. "This year's celebration should be a very big deal."

The presence of the alumni band will mark a welcomed addition to the Homecoming festivities. More information about the Clemson University Tiger Band Association and its alumni can be found online at virtual.clemson.edu/groups/CUTBA.

Prior to the Homecoming Queen ceremony, the band will begin its halftime performance with the playing of two pieces, titled "Praise" and "Jericho," and they will be played in that order. "The theme of the Homecoming halftime show is Gospel," said Spede. "We found the opening Gospel pieces to be very suiting as part of our homecoming tribute."

The Tiger Band will begin their performance before today's game with what has become the 2002 traditional pregame. The pregame show will continue to showcase "God Bless America," the "Star Spangled Banner," and the Clemson University Alma Mater. The traditional pregame agenda continues with the "Orange Bowl March," where the band spells out in script "Tigers." While getting into position, the band changes their tune to "Tiger Rag."

Following the pregame agenda, the band will wait for the arrival of the Clemson team buses at the top of the Hill for the "most exciting 25 seconds in college football." After the players get off the buses, they will rub Howard's Rock and then run down the Hill and through the tunnel formed by the band. The band will conclude its pregame ceremonies with the playing of "Tiger Rag" while the players run through the tunnel.

Every home weekend, Tiger Band honors a different band member or group to recognize their contributions to the organization. This week, Tiger Band will recognize its student staff.

The featured members of the staff are Molly Skidmore and Barrett Taylor. Skidmore, the Vice Commander, is a senior from Goose Creek, SC majoring in management. This is her fifth year in Tiger Band; she is the tuba section leader and a member of Kappa Kappa Psi.

Barrett Taylor, the Sergeant Major, is a senior from Easley, SC majoring in packaging science. This is his fourth year in Tiger Band, and he is the horn section leader. This season, he has undertaken a huge project: researching the history of Tiger Band. This spring, he will join Americorps and will eventually become a member of the Peace Corps.

The student staff is composed of 14 members: Dagenet Breaux, Krissy Calabrese, Shannon Finnegan, Tex George, Heather Lott, Robin McDowell, Kate Moon, Danny Scales, Molly Skidmore, Barrett Taylor, Jason Taylor, Lindsey Templeton, Jennifer Turchi, and Marshall Wells. Dr. Paul Buyer is the percussion instructor and Tim Willis is the announcer. This year's Tiger Band has a total of 170 members.

Remember that you can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group's CD "Shakin' the Southland." The CD features 30 famous Tiger fan favorites from previous football seasons. It includes "Sock It To 'Em," "Eye of the Tiger," and the Clemson Alma Mater. The CD is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check payable to CUTBA for $17 ($15 plus $2 shipping and handling) to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

Protecting Our Food Supply

THERE'S A LOT MORE TO CLEMSON THAN FOOTBALL.

A team of food scientists, chemists and microbiologists has come up with a way to tether luminescent molecules to detectors for food pathogens such as E. coli and salmonella. The result: Applying the system to contaminated foods would make them literally glow in the dark. The research could lead to an early-warning system for detecting the presence of contaminants, helping protect our food supply from natural contamination or bioterrorism.

Care you can believe in

by Shipp Daniel

Growing up in the small town of Laurens, SC, Clemson senior point guard Chrissy Floyd played outside a lot. Her favorite game? Basketball. Her opponent? Usually Brandon Allen, a neighbor who now plays basketball for Southern Wesleyan University in nearby Central. The wager? Usually a pack of gum worth about a dime.

"We stayed out all day and all night playing basketball," Floyd recalled. "We would play one-on-one until we couldn't play anymore."

Back then, Floyd's desire to win the backyard game and the pack of gum drove her to continually better herself on the court. In seventh grade, the stakes got a little higher as she began playing basketball for her school. She continued to improve, and just as she was beginning to receive letters from colleges, tragedy struck her family.

On August 12, 1998, Floyd's father, Michael, had an accident. A mechanic, Michael Floyd was removing a gas tank from a truck when gasoline spilled on his clothes. His clothes ignited when he walked by a heater, and the subsequent explosion caused the building to catch fire. Floyd survived, but not before receiving third-degree burns on 56 percent of his body. He was sent to the Augusta (GA) Burn Center for six months.

During that six-month period, Chrissy Floyd didn't have her usual contingent of fans at all of her basketball games. Usually her mother, father, sister, and some combination of an aunt, grandmother, and family friends attended her games. Now, for most of her junior basketball season, her dad could not be there.

"It hurt her to see her dad like that," said Brenda Floyd, Chrissy's mother. "She knew, though, that she had to keep playing ball, because she knew that's what her father would want. So, Chrissy never missed a game."

During the time that her father was rehabilitating from his accident, her contingent of fans increased by one. David Kennedy, Floyd's cousin and pastor, stepped up and took on the role of "dad" at Chrissy's basketball games.

"David was there for me," Floyd said. "He was always telling me that everything was going to be okay, and that I had to keep on playing and stay focused. He didn't want my dad's situation to negatively affect me."

Floyd took Kennedy's advice. She went on to be a phenomenal high school basketball player, earning many honors while playing at Laurens District 55 High School under coach Travis Langford. Her team won back-to-back state championships and went undefeated in two different seasons. She was named South Carolina's "Miss Basketball" by the High School Sports Report and American General. She also played in the South Carolina-North Carolina High School All-Star game. Floyd was named all-region for four seasons and was named all-state in both her junior and senior seasons as well.

Just before signing day of her senior year of high school, Floyd decided she wanted to play basketball at Clemson, despite being recruited by many other high-profile schools, such as South Carolina and North Carolina. "I always knew I wanted to play college basketball if I was good enough," Floyd stated. "I wanted to be close to home, so my family could come see me. That and other reasons made me decide to come to Clemson."

Clemson certainly is thankful to have Floyd. During her three years here, she has been a great asset to head coach Jim Davis' team and has garnered a plethora of awards. As a freshman and as a sophomore, she was named Second-Team All-ACC. As a sophomore and as a junior, she was named a Kodak Region All-American. After last season, Floyd was awarded First-Team All-ACC honors and was named to the Defensive All-ACC team. In 2001, she was selected to play on the United States World University Games team, a team that won the Gold Medal.

Floyd's greatest honor might have been presented this fall when she was named to the ACC's 50-Year Anniversary team. She was one of just two active ACC basketball players named to the team and one of just two active Clemson athletes (golfer D.J. Trahan is the other) in any sport to be selected.

Entering the 2002-03 season, Floyd has the chance to become the #2-ranked all-time leading scorer in Lady Tiger Basketball history. The record now stands at 3,113 points and is held by Barbara Kennedy, a member of Clemson's prestigious Ring of Honor. Currently holding second place is Janet Knight, with 1,796 points. Floyd, who has 1,402 points to her name, needs only 394 points to jump into second place.

While all of these awards are nice to have, they are not Floyd's focus.

"When I go out to play, I'm not playing for me," Floyd commented. "I just go out and play the game the way I know how. If someone feels like I deserve to receive something, it lets me know that the hard work I have put in has paid off. But I don't play for me, I play for the team."

Floyd's hard work and dedication do not go unnoticed by her teammates and coaches either.

"Chrissy might not be the most vocal person on the floor, but she's always the first person in line for drills, she works hard in the weight room, and she's the type of person who gets the job done,"

Floyd, a First-Team All-ACC selection last year, has scored 1,402 career points entering her senior season at Clemson.

Chrissy Floyd is one of only two active Clemson athletes to be selected to an ACC 50-Year Anniversary team.

said Kanetra Queen, Floyd's teammate and roommate. "She always carries a positive attitude on and off the court. She's a great example for the team because she's an honor roll student, and she always has a good attitude."

"She's always working on her game," said Kennedy. "She's the type of player who is constantly bettering herself. Her ongoing devotion to the game makes her a leader on the court. I just wish I was young enough to play with her."

It is obvious that Floyd is an impact player for the Lady Tiger Basketball program, and it is obvious that she has also made an impact off the court, with both her teammates and her coaches. What is not so obvious about her is that when she is not working on her game or working on her education, she is probably singing or laughing.

"She sings all the time," said teammate and roommate Khaili Sanders. "We sing in front of the mirror a lot."

That singing paid off two years ago when the team traveled to Myrtle Beach for a game. After watching an Elvis impersonation show, Floyd, along with former Lady Tigers Krystal Scott, Erin Batth, and Andrea Gaines, went up on stage, took the microphone, and began singing.

"That was the best part of the show," recalled Queen.

"She can play the piano, too," bragged Floyd's mother. "We're so proud of her for all her accomplishments, and we thank God for her abilities."

Floyd's God-given abilities will help lead the Lady Tiger Basketball team into the 2002-03 season (that is her basketball abilities, not her singing abilities). With her mother, her father, her aunt, her grandmother, her family friends, and basketball fans watching, Floyd will enjoy her senior season as a Lady Tiger. And here, on this stage, she is no longer playing for packs of gum; she is playing for ACC and NCAA championships.

The 2002-03 Clemson women's tennis team is coming off of a successful year, both on and off the court. Last season, the Tigers reached the NCAA Tournament for the first time in four years and defeated two top-20 ranked teams en route to a final ITA ranking of #34.

Clemson also excelled in the classroom in 2002, earning ITA All-Academic Team honors with a cumulative team GPA of 3.31. The Tigers also had three individuals named ITA Academic All-Americans for the season. Head Coach Nancy Harris looks for the 2002-03 Tigers to use their experience and talent to build on the successes of last year's team.

The 2002-03 team's strength will lie in its experience, as eight members of last year's team return this season. Included in the eight returners are the #31-ranked postseason ITA singles player and the #52-ranked doubles team. In addition to the veteran players, Harris is optimistic about the addition of a very talented new player to the lineup.

Julie Coin, a sophomore from Amiens, France, joins the Tigers this season. Harris expects that Coin will see action in the top of the Tiger lineup.

"From watching her practice," said Harris, "I believe that she will be one of the greatest players that has ever played for Clemson."

If early results are any indication of things to come, Coin is well on her way to proving Harris right. At the Furman Fall Classic, Coin defeated #10-ranked Sarah Riske of Vanderbilt to win the flight-one singles championship.

Sophomore Alix Lacelarie will also play at the top of the lineup. Lacelarie, a native of Villeneuve-les-Beziers, France, is the #22-ranked player in the ITA's preseason poll. Lacelarie had a 28-13 overall singles record last season and reached the second round of the 2002 NCAA singles championships. Harris does not expect Lacelarie to see any action in competition during the fall after undergoing knee surgery over the summer.

"We're concerned about the rehabilitation of the knee and are taking it slow," said Harris. "The doctors in France are confident that her knee will be fine. She should be healthy for the spring season."

Also returning are seniors Laurence Jayet, Ana Stiglic, and Sunnie Harmon. Harris looks to these seniors not only to provide leadership through experience, but also through emotion.

Jayet, one of the team's co-captains from Le Cannet, France, has been a major contributor in singles, and especially doubles competition. Last season, Jayet teamed with Lacelarie as the Tigers' top doubles team, and completed the season with a 21-11 overall record and a rank of #52 in the postseason ITA poll. Harris expects Jayet to play near the middle of the singles lineup this season.

"Laurence is a player with a huge heart," said Harris.

ris. "I expect her to be a great contributor this year; from an emotional perspective, from a captain's perspective, and from the fact that she is a senior and wants to go out strong."

Stiglic, a native of Kensington, South Africa, is a player that Harris has enjoyed watching improve throughout her four years. "She's playing better than I have ever seen her play and I expect her to upset some very good players this year," predicted Harris.

Stiglic is a player that Harris sees playing in the middle part of the lineup and being a contributor in the doubles lineup as well.

Harmon is in her second year as a co-captain of the Tiger team. The Greenwood, SC native is, according to Harris, the glue that keeps the team together. "She always encourages her teammates when they seem to be discouraged and has a listening ear when they seem to need one," said Harris. "It's important to have a person like that on the team. Especially when you are trying to achieve something so great, you need to have positive leadership. Sunnie definitely provides that."

Harmon has been plagued by injuries in the past few years, but will hopefully remain healthy this season and be able to contribute as much physically on the court as she does emotionally.

Juniors Ashlea Bowen and Anna Dolinska also return to the Tiger roster, adding additional experience and depth to the lineup.

Bowen, who is from Lawrenceville, GA, accomplished her childhood dream of playing tennis at Clemson by making the team. "Ashlea is highly motivated," said Harris. "She comes to practice every day and works just as hard as anybody else, and most of the time, harder."

Harris appreciates the contribution that Bowen makes to the team's chemistry and her ability to keep the team focused on their goals. "Ashlea plays a great role, whether she's getting the opportunity to play or whether she's in a support role. She treats them both the same and she does a great job of it."

Dolinska, a junior from Warsaw, Poland, has played an important role in doubles the past two seasons. Harris looks to her to contribute again in the doubles competition in 2003 and hopes to see her make the singles lineup this year as well.

"Anna has real talent," said Harris. "One of our challenges as a coaching staff is to get her to see that she has what it takes and to go for it."

Sophomore Alix Lacelarie competed at the 2002 NCAA Singles Championship and is ranked #22 in the ITA preseason singles poll.

S o p h o m o r e Richele LeSaldo, a native of Saint Thomas, Barbados, is a player that Harris expects to contribute in the middle to top of both the singles and doubles lineups. "Richele has improved tremendously from last year, by mastering the fundamentals that we've tried to teach all of the athletes," said Harris. "After the success she had last season, her desire seems to be getting greater, and she is setting higher goals. It will be exciting to watch her achieve some of those goals this year."

Ioana Paun, a sophomore from Bucharest, Romania, will see action in the middle to lower part of the singles lineup. Harris is impressed with her ability to see the court.

"She has a way of reading her opponent mentally," stated Harris. "She always knows what is going on in a match and exactly what needs to be done to win it. Ioana is the kind of player that you want to have on the court when the chips are down."

Harris' philosophy on competition is "if you want to be the best in the country, you have to play against the best." She has always prided herself on the level of difficulty of her teams' schedules, and the 2002-03 season is no exception. The spring schedule features matches against five of the top-eight ranked teams from last season's ITA postseason rankings, including 2002 NCAA runner-up Florida.

"In trying to build a national championship team, one of the steps to success is to have a top-notch schedule," stated Harris. "Not only do we have a top-20 schedule and compete in one of tennis's toughest conferences, but we're playing against five teams who are ranked in the top 10 in the country. If we can knock off one or two of those teams, it sends a strong statement for recruiting and it also builds our confidence."

Harris is looking forward to the prospect of an exciting and successful season. She credits the experience and talent of the team as well as their ability to focus on their goals. In addition, Harris feels that team chemistry will contribute to the success of the 2002-03 Tigers.

D.J. Trahan returned to Clemson for his senior year with a purpose...win a national championship. It really is that simple.

Trahan's list of accomplishments during his first three years with the Clemson golf program already qualifies him for the Clemson Hall of Fame. He has already won the Jack Nicklaus and Ben Hogan Awards, honors presented to the National Player-of-the-Year. He has also represented the United States in the Walker Cup and the Palmer Cup matches, high profile international team competitions that signify the pinnacle of amateur golf.

He is already Clemson's career leader in stroke average, and has been a First-Team All-American and ACC Player-of-the-Year. He has won the U.S. Public Links Championship as well. This past summer, he was named one of the ACC's 50-greatest golfers ever, the only active golfer to make the list.

There is just one item missing from his resume. "D.J. Trahan has some unfinished business," said Head Coach Larry Penley. "He wants to win a national championship for Clemson. He certainly has the maturity and the leadership qualities to take us there. He's as talented a leader as you will find."

Penley knows what he is talking about. He is now in his 20th year as Clemson's head coach. During that time, he has taken Clemson to the NCAA national tournament every year and has finished in the top 10 each of the last six years, including a #2-final ranking in 2001 and a #3 rating last season. He has come close to a team title on many occasions, but has never won the top prize.

"This team is certainly capable of winning the national championship and that is our goal," said Penley. "That is our goal every year for this program. But this year in particular we have the talent, the leadership, the ball-striking ability, and the motivation to win a national championship."

So far this year, Clemson has shown it has the mettle to compete for the top honor. The Tigers won each of their first two tournaments, something it has never done previously. The team is ranked #1 in the nation in two of the three polls.

"We have gotten off to a good start," continued Penley. "We knew we would be tested in Japan at the Topy Cup in the very first tournament. The Japanese teams were outstanding competition, as were the United States' teams. That was an important tournament because it showed we could win without D.J. being our low man."

That has been the key in the fall. Clemson is more than just Trahan and four guys. Through two tournaments, all five players had a top-10 finish.

"And, we have some outstanding players who have not gotten into a tournament yet," said Penley.

"The top-five spots on this team are competitive. The sixth, seventh, and eighth players could just as well be our third, fourth, and five players. If the NCAA counted eight players in a tournament, I would really be confident about our chances."

Clemson has a different motivation this year as compared to this time a year ago. Clemson was ranked ninth in the preseason poll for the 2001-02 season. You could not blame that poll for the rating because Clemson had just lost two First-Team All-Americans (Lucas Glover and John Engler), a pair of four-year starters who are now competing on the Clemson is aiming for a national title after last year's third-place finish. The 2002-03 team members are (back row (left to right)) Michael Sims, Nick Biershenk, Ben Duncan, Head Coach Larry Penley, D.J. Trahan, Brian Duncan, Matt Hendrix, Gregg Jones, (front row) Martin Catalioto, Jack Ferguson, Brent Delahoussaye, and Stephen Poole.

BUY.com Tour. Penley's team was allowed to sneak up on the other teams, something it did when it won the Preview in the fall of 2001 at Ohio State.

But this year, Clemson will not sneak up on anyone. "We can't use that motivation this year," said Penley. "We are ranked #1 or two, and we won't let that consume us. We are just going to concentrate on getting better every tournament. That sounds simple, but that is our approach. Every player will examine their game week-to-week, find their weakness, and improve on it. That consistent work ethic will be a key for us this year."

Trahan provides that example to the younger players with his long hours at the Robinson Practice Facility and Walker Course. The hard work has paid off for the senior from Inman, SC, who was an Academic and on-the-course All-American last year.

Trahan entered this year with a 71.65 career stroke average, best in Clemson history. That is quite a statement considering 12 Clemson golfers were on the ACC's 50-Year Anniversary team, more than any other school. He already owns the Clemson record for rounds in the 60s and should establish the mark for under-par rounds. The sky is the limit for this player who is the #1-ranked amateur and the #1-ranked collegiate in the country.

Gregg Jones is a returning Second-Team All-American from a year ago. Jones has a career average of 72.44, fourth in Clemson history. A year ago, the junior had four top-10 finishes in his 12 tournaments and had a 71.81 stroke average. His season included a ninth-place finish at the Ping Preview and a second-place finish at Augusta State. His 17th place finish at the NAAs, a one-under, 283 score, was a key to Clemson's top-three finish.

Ben Duncan is the early favorite for the team's most improved award. The senior from Greenville, SC played in nine tournaments last year and had a 73.54 stroke average, third best on the team. His final season has gotten off to a quick start (70.83 stroke average through six rounds), including a career-best fifth-place finish at the Carpet Classic.

Matt Hendrix was a reliable performer last year as a sophomore, with a 73.70 stroke average as a competitor in all 12 events. He started his junior year with a 65 in the first round at the Topy Cup, the low round by a Clemson golfer in two years. His 207, 54-hole total in Japan was a key to Clemson's team victory.

Jack Ferguson had perhaps the best summer of any Clemson golfer. He won an amateur event in Birmingham, AL, then had top-10 finishes at the Rice Planters (6th), Southern Am (3rd), South Carolina Amateur (2nd), and The Cardinal (2nd). To begin his sophomore year at Clemson, he finished third at the Topy Cup, first among American collegiate players, with a 204 score, one of the top-five 54-hole scores in Clemson history.

Martin Catalioto was a starter in eight events as a freshman last year and posted a 74.6 stroke average. His NCAA Tournament performance included a 293 total, third best among Tigers. His score counted all four rounds, a solid performance for a first-year freshman.

Brian Duncan, a red-shirt freshman, and Nick Biershenk, a true freshman, were semi-finalists at the South Carolina Amateur Match Play Championships this past summer. Both could see action this season. Duncan is the brother of current senior Ben Duncan, while Biershenk is the brother of Tommy Biershenk, a former Tiger now on the BUY.com Tour. Michael Sims and Stephen Poole are two other veterans who could break in the lineup at any time.

What pleases Penley the most about his team is its mental approach to this season. "After last year's finish (third), they didn't pat each other on the back. They worked hard over the summer to get better. They know there are strong challengers out there, they know there are a lot of great teams. They all want the same goal, and they understand the work it will take to get there."

This year, Clemson and the ACC are honoring the greatest athletes in every sport for the 50-year history of the conference. Clemson had over 50 of its honorees return to campus for the Ball State game on September 21.

The list of Clemson athletes who have made these teams is a who's who of Clemson sports history the last 50 years. Clemson had more representatives than any other school on the 50-year teams in seven different sports, including men's golf. Clemson has a rich tradition in that sport, having recorded six-straight top-10 NCAA finishes. The PGA and BUY.com Tours have had 12 former Tigers compete this year.

One former Clemson Tiger alum who did play on the PGA Tour this year, but did not make the ACC 50-Year Anniversary team, is Jeff Julian. Julian is not considered a former all-time Clemson great, as he never actually played in an official tournament for the Tigers when he was a student at Clemson between 1979-82.

His accomplishments on the golf course in recent years have not been particularly noteworthy either. He has played in three U.S. Opens and has been a member of the PGA Tour or BUY.com Tour for nearly a decade. But he finished 211th on the PGA Tour money list in 2001 with $55,132. In the spring of 2002, he played in seven tournaments and never made a cut.

So, why are we writing a story in a football program about Jeff Julian during a year in which we celebrate the greats in Clemson athletic history?

Jeff Julian's mere participation on the PGA Tour this past summer is a noteworthy accomplishment. The way he has represented Clemson as an alumnus has been inspiring, as inspiring a performance as any given by the 160 Clemson 50-Year Anniversary team members.

Julian played seven PGA Tour events this past year as he deals with the insidious disease amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also known as Lou Gehrig's Disease and ALS. The disease is fatal, as it attacks the nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord. Patients lose voluntary muscle control and the ability to move, swallow, and breathe.

Julian was first diagnosed with the disease on October 8, 2001. He went to John's Hopkins in Baltimore after noticing that his speech was becoming slurred and he was having trouble swallowing. There was a hacking cough that just would not go away.

Recently married, Julian and his wife (Kim) decided that he would fight on and appear in as many PGA events as possible to bring attention to the disease, and thereby raise money for a cure. Julian did not earn enough money on the 2001 PGA Tour and failed to qualify through "Q" School. He thus had to apply for special exemptions to be included in any field.

The PGA Tour allows seven special exemptions in a season. When tournament chairmen read about his plight, receiving seven exemptions was as easy as breathing.

Julian's resilience and stamina despite the disease has been an inspiration to other members of the tour. "He carries on like nothing's going on," said PGA Tour's Brett Quigley, like Julian a native of New England. "A lot of people would feel sorry for themselves, but not Jeff."

Julian's problems first came to light nationally when he played in the AT&T at Pebble Beach in February. USA Today, Golf World, and many others documented his fight. To participate this past summer, Julian had to have I.V. bag drips to fight the disease and keep his strength up so he could walk 18 holes. He also had many visits to chiropractors and other doctors who worked on rehabilitation, working on everything from his shoulders to his mouth and throat.

While the pain is considerable and his fatigue extreme at the end of each round, there were many highlights this year to Julian's journey. Jack Nicklaus invited Julian to play in his Memorial Tournament in Ohio in May, and the greatest player of the 20th century played with Julian during a practice round.

In June, Julian had flashes of brilliance on the course during a U.S. Open sectional qualifier. He birdied three of the last four holes at Norwood Hills Country Club in Saint Jeff Julian has raised awareness and funds for ALS through his heroic participation in PGA Tour events the past year.

Louis to advance to regional play. Unfortunately, his goal of playing in the U.S. Open, which he qualified for three times previously, fell short.

Many players on the tour have rallied behind Julian's cause. After playing in the Greater Hartford Open in June, he went to Vermont, where a Jeff Julian Celebration of Golf was held the Monday after the conclusion of the tournament. A total of 360 people, including 20 PGA professionals, played over two courses that day, helping to raise over $200,000, money that was donated to help fight A.L.S.

The governor of Vermont proclaimed Monday as Jeff Julian Day across the state. "A lot of us can learn a lesson from him," said Steve Pate, a member of the 1999 U.S. Ryder Cup Team. "He does not feel sorry for himself."

"Jeff is one of the good guys," said PGA Tour pro Olin Browne. "Twenty pros took time on a day off to come to Vermont and be a part of this. This is indicative of how people like him."

I met Jeff Julian in Greensboro, NC last April. I was in town for an ACC meeting and he was there to participate in the Greater Greensboro Open. We ran into each other on an elevator. I introduced myself as being the sports information director at Clemson. His eyes lit up as he obviously instantaneously recalled simpler, happier days.

His voice slurred and was difficult to understand, but we talked about Clemson's golf program and the improvement it has made since he was a Clemson student trying to make the team as a walk-on. His wife had to translate a couple of times, but his interest in Clemson was still strong.

As he walked off towards his car and his pursuit to make the cut, I couldn't help but think that former walk-ons like Jeff Julian can have just as positive an effect on the heritage of a school and its athletic program as any member of an ACC 50-Year Anniversary team.

Tim Bourret is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 25th year at Clemson.

Julian attended Clemson from 1979-82 before turning pro. He has played on the PGA and BUY.com Tours for over a decade.
